MARSHALL TAKES EXCEPTIONS TO GOV. SMITH'S REPLY TO HIM

Quotes Book Approved by Cardinal to Show Catholics Are Taught Pope Can Annul Civil Laws.

POLITY, NOT FAITH, IS ISSUE, HE SAYS Accepts Governor's Personal Disclaimer but Declares Church Authorities Differ With Him.

THE TEXT OF GOV.
SMITH'S REPLY TO MAR-SHALL, REPRODUCED BY PERMISSION OF THE AT-LANTIC MONTHLY, IS ON
DISPATCH. THE TEXT OF THE ORIGINAL MARSHALL
LETTER IS ON PAGE 24.

NEW YORK, April 18.—While accepting the personal disclaimer of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York that no church has any power to interfere with the operation of the laws and the Constitution of the United States, Charles C. Marshall, Episcopal archbishop and author of canon law, today challenged the Governor's statement that this view is held by Roman Catholics generally.

On the contrary, Marshall declared, a Catholic high school text book issued by John Joseph Mcvey and issued in Philadelphia in 1926, under the imprimatur of archbishop, now Cardinal Dougherty, expressly states that the Pope has "supreme and power to annul civil laws."

Gov. Smith will not make a reply to Marshall's rejoinder. This was officially stated by Dr. A. J. Leonard, speaking for the Governor at the Seaview Golf Club at Atlantic City this afternoon.

The Governor considers his reply answered all the points brought up by Mr. Marshall and will not reply anything further," Dr. Leonard said.

Marshall said that he originally asked Gov. Smith to state whether he placed his church above the laws and Constitution of the United States. He declared today that the issue was one of church policy and not of faith, and he denied that he had attacked the Roman Catholic faith.

Books From McVey's Book.
Marshall quoted the following extracts from McVey's book:
"In what order or respect is the State subordinate to the (Roman Catholic) Church? Answer:
In the spiritual order and in all things referring to the Catholic faith."

"What right has the Pope in virtue of this supremacy? Answer:
The right to annul those laws or acts of government that would interfere with the salvation of souls or attack the natural rights of citizens."

"What more should the State than respect the rights and liberty of the (Roman Catholic) faith? Answer: The State should also aid, protect and defend the church."

"What then is the principal reason of heads of states? Answer: To practice the Catholic religion, and, as they are in power, to protect and defend it."

"Has the State the right and duty to do so, both for the good of the nation and for that of the faithful themselves?
The religious unity is the principle of the foundation of social unity."

"Book Used in Schools.
This book, which he said had been through 48 editions, Marshall stated, was being used in high schools and was one of the books from which the children learned the principles of the Catholic faith."

"When may the State tolerate dissenting worshipers? When these people have acquired a sort of distance consecrated by time and accorded by treaties and covenants."

"May the State separate itself from the (Roman Catholic) faith? Answer: No, for it may withdraw from the supreme of Christ."

"What name is given to the people that the State has nothing the right nor the duty to be separated from the (Roman Catholic) faith? Answer: This is libelous. It is founded principally on the fact that modern society is based on liberty of conscience and not on the liberty of conscience."

POWER STO MAKE NEW DEMANDS ON THE CANTONESE

Terms to Be More Vigorous in Tone and Possibly Include Time Limit for Compliance

FIVE NATIONS TO AGAIN JOIN IN MOVE

Proposal of Minister Chen on Nanking Outrages Considered as Likely to Produce Discord.

LONDON, April 18.—It was authoritatively stated today that new demands on the Cantonese government, which will be more vigorous in tone and possibly include a time limit for compliance, will be made by the five Powers which delivered identical notes to the Cantonese government last week as a result of the Nanking disorders of March 24.

It was stated that these new demands will be made as a result of the "unsatisfactory" replies made to the Powers by Eugene Chen, the Cantonese Foreign Minister at Hankow.

It was stated that the Pekin Ministers of the five Governments were in complete agreement that Chen's answer, proposing the creation of an international commission to determine responsibility for the Nanking incident, was likely to cause procrastination and possible discord among the Powers.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The United States cruiser Cincinnati has twice been fired upon on the Yangtze River, in China, Admiral Williams, commanding the American fleet in Chinese waters, reported today to the Navy Department.

Besides meeting machine gun fire, Admiral Williams said the cruiser also had three or four-inch guns turned against her below Nanking on Saturday. The fire was returned by the Cincinnati with machine guns and her six-inch battery. The vessel also met heavy rifle fire north of Tating, the report said. There were no casualties aboard the Cincinnati in either encounter.

Admiral Williams said all foreign prisoners at Luckow, Fu Anhwei Province, had been looted. Eight Americans and five British missionaries there were said to be en route to Shanghai. At Kiating, on Friday, the house of the Anderson Meyer Co., American exporters on the Bund, was looted. The commanding officer of the American destroyer Hulbert lodged a strong protest and demanded the return of the loot.

The encounters of the Cincinnati marks a continuation of the firing from the river banks upon American ships in recent days during which the guns of the ships have been brought into action in reply. In previous instances, however, there has been no indication that the Chinese were using heavy guns in their attacks.

Five whiplash tanks were landed this afternoon to strengthen the defenses of the French concession in Shanghai. The British cruisers vindictive and Carlisle have left for Hankow.

Chiang Forms New Government at Nanking.

SHANGHAI, China, April 18.—Formation of a Government at Nanking by General Chiang Kai-shek was reported today.

No details were given in the dispatches received, but it is understood that Canton, Shanghai and Nanking men figure largely in its composition.

Thus there are apparently three Governments in China, not counting the various semi-independent warlordships.

The political department of the Eastern division of the Cantonese Army has arranged two mass meetings in the Chinese section of Shanghai to celebrate "establishment of the Nationalist Government at Nanking and restoration of Kuomintang influence in the South."

The first meeting was set for this afternoon and the second for tomorrow.

A formal plenary session of the right wing Kuomintang was scheduled to open in Nanking today to ratify the impeachment of the Hankow Communists.

Missionary and Daughter Killed by Bandits.

SHANGHAI, April 18.—Foreign missionaries who came to Shanghai from all parts of the interior to seek the shelter of the international settlement, were saddened today by the news of the murder by Chinese bandits of one of their fellow workers, the Rev. Morris Slichter, of Toronto, Canada, and his 8-year-old daughter.

They were anxious, too, for the safety of Mrs. Slichter, the missionary's wife, her five-year-old son, John, and Miss Mary I. Craig, of Philadelphia, a nurse, taken captives by the bandits.

Slichter and the others of the China Inland Mission at Anhui, the missionaries were making their way southward to the railway leading to Hongkong, having left their station when the British Consul suggested it would be unwise for them to remain longer.

towns caring for refugees. It was reported that Red Cross headquarters at Washington that flood came at Wickliffe, Ky., and Natchez, Miss., were growing rapidly more serious, but this is taken to be the situation of the refugees.

The Red Cross has sent Henry M. Baker, its national disaster relief director, to survey conditions in the whole flood area and prepare a comprehensive relief program. National officers of this organization believe that, in addition to a variety of first-aid measures, there will have to be provided for three or four weeks for the homeless in the northern part of the flood district and for two months in the southern part, which the crest will reach in May.

A special meeting of Red Cross officials was held in Washington last night to prepare for any new emergency which may arise.

Hickman, Ky., its lower section submerged, has become the relief center for farm families from a surrounding flooded area of about 1,250,000 acres. About 2000 refugees are packed in houses, tents, churches, barns and railroad cars there, and the Red Cross and Kentucky National Guard have joined to fight the possibility of spread of disease in this little town. About 100 tents already are pitched on high ground.

A hospital with half a dozen patients, has been, improvised at the Elks Club. One patient, who is isolated, is a 4-year-old boy with mumps. Three are mothers. Others are suffering from exposure. Food supplies is being inspected and incinerators set up. Food supplies appear adequate for the time being. As many as 40 Negroes have been sleeping in single homes.

Women Sent for Refugees.

Public kitchens are supplying meals. Hickman women have formed a sewing organization, meeting in the Carnegie Library and making straw-filled mattresses, baby layettes and clothing for children. They are receiving donations of clothing also. Members of the American Legion and Boy Scouts are on duty, performing any services in their power. Steamboats and launches have been patrolling the water near Hickman in search of stranded persons.

for a mile. All the trees and buildings near this crevasse have been swept away. When the flood reaches a level in this section there is danger of another break farther south to permit the water to return toward the main channel.

Above Hickman, the 800 residents of Columbus, Ky., are gathered near their town, which is well under water. Sanitary conditions among them are reported to have become bad, but equipment is on its way to them for purifying drinking water and destroying rubbish.

More Than 1000 Cared for at Cairo.

More than 1000 refugees, with relief measures, are being cared for at Cairo, Mo., below Chester, Ill., has been deserted by its inhabitants and more than 30,000 acres of land has been flooded.

Lower Perry County, Mo., below Chester, Ill., has been deserted by its inhabitants and more than 30,000 acres of land has been flooded.

The town of Van Buren also was threatened by a weak levee and Mayor Cunningham appealed to every able-bodied man in town to help strengthen the levee.

White River Returns to Its Banks in Taneycomo (Mo.) District.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 18.—Taneycomo district's greatest flood virtually has ended. White River has nearly returned to its banks. Scores of flooded cottages have disappeared, but many of the more substantial buildings submerged during the flood escaped serious damage.

Work on Levees Continues.

On the levees of the Mississippi and contiguous streams and drainage canals continued to day throughout 1500 miles of the river valley. Army engineers at Memphis and elsewhere reported that satisfactory progress was being made. Special care is taken at what are regarded as the weakest points, including one in Mississippi County, Mo. In Eastern Arkansas railroad and highway traffic is virtually suspended. A fall has begun upstream in some of the Arkansas streams, bringing hope for some relief.

Marshall Expects to Smith Reply

and of worship and on liberty of speech and the press.

Why is liberalism to be condemned? Answer: Because it denies all subordination of the State to the (Roman Catholic) Church.

"If you will insist that this teaching applies only to the ideal Roman Catholic state," Marshall asked the Governor, "may I ask why it is taught in the United States?"

Accepts Smith's Disclaimer.

Marshall said he accepted Gov. Smith's disclaimer, but I submit that you are wholly wrong in your statement that these convictions are not held by other American Catholics.

Marshall denied that he had made an imputation of disloyalty on the part of Gov. Smith, but denied the Governor's right to prohibit the free exercise thereof.

"I do not charge," he said, "that the teaching of McVeigh's manual is disloyal in the sense in which you use that word, but I do say it is dangerous and pernicious and one against which citizens other than Roman Catholics have a right to protest and act."

In closing, Marshall said: "I trust I have made myself clear that you mistake for a question of faith a question relating to the polity of a church political sovereignty that proclaims its position by asking even at the present hour a place among the sovereignties of mankind at the council board of the League of Nations."

No Idea of Religious Bar.

"Let me say with the greatest emphasis that no view I have expressed has been intended to suggest the placing of a ban against candidacy for office because of religion. The way out lies by no such unhappy path; and your disclaimer is my voucher for this assertion. It is often said our venerable church never changes, but history proves this is not true. There is a reformation in religion within her as well as a confining policy."

In spite of the latter, imposing indeed is her store of the riches of grace, piety and devotion. She may be encumbered at present with the undisciplined traditions of medievalism, but she is alert to the call of her Divine Master. Further from the encyclopaedia to that effect. As to the syllabus of Pope Pius IX, quoted by Marshall on the matter of a possible conflict between Church and State, the Governor said it had been declared by Cardinal Newman to have no dogmatic force.

"You have no more right to ask me to defend as part of my faith of political importance because of Gov. Smith's prominence as a possible candidate for the Democratic nomination for President.

Outlining his creed as "an American Catholic," Gov. Smith asserted: "I believe in the worship of God according to the faith and practice of the Roman Catholic Church."

"In the freedom of worship as a matter of right," he said, "in absolute separation of church and state," in "support of the public school as one of the corner stones of American liberty," in freedom of education for children in public or religious schools; in the "principle of noninterference by this country in the internal affairs of other nations," in the strict enforcement of the provisions of the Constitution that Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

"In this spirit," concludes the letter, "I join with fellow Americans of all creeds in a fervent prayer that never again in this land will any religious or political controversy be challenged because of the faith in which he has tried to walk humbly with his God."

The Governor cited the 19th Amendment, and observed that he never has known any conflict between his official duties and his religious belief.

"Your church, just as mine," he told Marshall, "is unafraid to stand in the line of duty as a public officer to separate himself from his religious beliefs."

Gov. Smith's letter was classified as a document of great historical importance. The Governor proposed in Marshall's letter of greatest interest to all Americans in the Democratic party. Smith should be of equal rank to all."

Smith's Record Proves He Declares Josephus Daniels, RALEIGH, N. C., April 18.—Gov. Smith's record as Governor of New York is his best argument for his unfitness to be a church in his public service. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy in the Wilson Cabinet, said: "His statement," Daniels declared, "is in keeping with his record as to his attitude as to the church and as to his attitude toward public questions. He ought to be voted for or against because of church affiliations."

Gov. Donahoe of Ohio Now in Conflict on Church and State.

COLUMBUS, O., April 18.—Donahoe of Ohio, in comment today on the pronouncement of Gov. Smith of New York as to the matter of church and state, declared:

"The happy thing about the change of letters is that it has cleared up the confusion of the past. Messrs. Marshall and Smith, in the separation of church and state, which principle has made the United States the most worthwhile nation in the world."

That Mrs. Snyder's defense be that her hand was forced. Gray, under fear of bodily harm herself, was indicated by her counsel in court today.

is the law."

District Attorney Newcomb jumped to his feet to object, after a brief and inaudible exchange of words with the Judge.

Two-thirds of the courtroom, filled today with the 120 reporters covering the trial. The remainder was occupied by the talesmen. On either side of the great amplifiers, horns such were used on the earlier trials, brought the words of the witness to the ears of the talesmen at the front of the room and upon the press tables.

The voices were carried to loud speakers from two microphones, one set in front of the witness box and one on the St. Louis table in front of the witness box.

First "Loud Speaker" Trial.

The amplification of court proceedings was ordered by Judge Tamm. Scudder, presiding, because of poor acoustics of the courtroom. It marked the "loud speaker" trial in the history of the State.

The defendants entered at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Snyder following Gray. Both seemed composed. Mrs. Snyder, dressed in mourning, was accompanied by her mother. Her father was then filled, with Mrs. Snyder being questioned as to fitness.

In the first group, four talesmen were asked by District Attorney Newcomb whether they had read of the killing of the two talesmen.

Gray, who had read of the killing, said he had read of the killing, but would not be influenced thereby.

May Not Take Stand.

They also said they would "hold it against" Mrs. Snyder. She did not take the stand in her own defense. They said they doubted no one could be convicted on the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice.

They said that if it were shown that Mrs. Snyder's confession to the killing was not freely offered, they would not take it from their minds in reaching a verdict.

Hamilton then indicated would try to show his client

GRAY DECLARED SANE AS MURDER TRIAL STARTS

Attorney Says Insanity Was Not Be Contended Salesman and Mrs. Snyder Prepare to Face Jury

WOMAN TO ACCUSE MAN SHE "FEARED"

Confessions That The Killed Magazine Art Editor Have Been Republished by Both.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Was insanity definitely eliminated as a defense plea, Henry Judd Gray went to trial with Mrs. Snyder Snyder for the murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband.

Announcement that Gray's defense would not be insanity was made by his attorney, Samuel Miller, upon hearing the report of four talesmen, two of whom had been retained by the defense and two by the State, that there was no reason why Gray should not stand on trial with Mrs. Snyder.

200 Talesmen Summoned.

Two hundred talesmen were ordered to report at Queen's Court House in Long Island City for selection of a jury.

The State charges that the defendants, secret sweethearts, murdered Albert Snyder, while absent, in a scheme to clear the way for marriage or to obtain Snyder's $104,000 life insurance.

Wife Told of Burglar.

Albert Snyder, 45-year-old editor of Motor Boating, a magazine, was found dead in his apartment on March 20 by neighbors. He had been strangled with a picture wire and beaten about the head. Mrs. Snyder was found in a room at first told a story of being overpowered by a "giant burglar."

She reported that her jaw was missing, but they were found under a mattress.

Gray was arrested in Syracuse and what at first appeared to be an airtight alibi was broken down by the investigation. It was a confession which the State reported on the ground that they had been obtained under duress, Gray and Mrs. Snyder admitted the crime.

That Mrs. Snyder's defense be that her hand was forced. Gray, under fear of bodily harm herself, was indicated by her counsel in court today.

Attorney Edgar Hazelton closed his intention while questioning talesmen.

Sunrise Easter Service In Forest Park Attended By Crowd of About 8000

First Community Meeting of Kind in St. Louis Draws Persons From All Walks of Life.

"As it began to dawn on the first day of the week,"

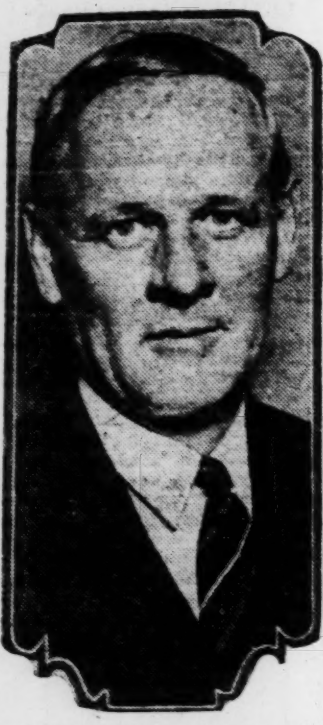

So begins the story of the first Easter. The same words may be used in telling of St. Louis' first community Easter service, held in Forest Park at sunrise yesterday.

Before dawn, and while the full moon was still luminous in the west, men and women were gathering about the tall brown cross and the small stage placed at the junction of Grand drive and West Pine cutoff, west of the park's northeast entrance. They came in automobiles, hundreds of which were left lining the streets and park roadways; they came on foot, and by street cars. They gathered in an irregular formation, which, surveyed by daylight after all had arrived, appeared to approximate a large Municipal Theater audience, and hence to number 6000 to 8000 persons. Some estimates were much larger than this.

Rich Pageantry of Nature.

They were rewarded, first, by the rich pageantry of Nature, the sky changing tints, the morning songs of birds and the beauty of trees, grass and flower; and next, by a religious service, simple in character, appealing to the spirit of the outdoors and to those inner feelings which the preacher of the occasion described as "a divine discontent with self."

The Forest Park service, and the California gatherings on which it is modeled, are new to the public today, but outdoor religion dates from antiquity. Not only were "the groves God's first temples," but Christianity had its beginnings on hillside and in garden. Persecution later drove it within doors, and Northern climates helped to keep it there. As a plea for a return, in such degree as is possible, to the religion of the outdoors, the stanzas from Henry Van Dyke's lyric, "God of the Open Air," were read from the Forest Park stage.

Dress was less formal, and bright new costumes were less frequent, in the park congregation than in the churches and on the boulevard sidewalks a few hours later. Many had come on short notice, and some of the men had not paused to shave. Yet the growing light disclosed hats and coats in seasonable green, and in other bright hues of current fashion. Style hardly extended to the ground, for the prudent wore goloshes or rubbers.

Crowd of All Stations in Life.

The worshippers and spectators were not all of one locality, or of one race, or of one station in life. The heads of several of the city's largest corporations were present, and Negro laborers also were there.

A clergyman told of the procession which he saw hurrying on foot out Lindell boulevard, saying it reminded him of the footrace between the apostles Peter and John, on the first Easter.

The Rev. Dr. Edward S. Travers, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church and planner of the outdoor service, was the officiating minister. The perfect weather bore out the optimism with which he had proceeded through the downpours of the past weeks. The only effect of the rain upon his plans had been to cause removal of the location from a grassy slope, some distance south, to the driveway junction, where, with the roads closed to traffic, a large segment of the audience could stand on a firm surface. At the other side, park benches helped some to keep their feet off the soggy earth.

Printed programs, bearing the words of the hymns, were distributed through the crowd, which stood 30 to 70 deep on different sides of the platform. The greatest depth was toward the southeast, the direction faced by the speakers. The voices of Dr. Travers and the co-officiating clergymen carried well up the slope, and some who stood on the Wabash railroad embankment and bridge, at the speakers' back, reported that they could hear the speaking.

Birds Aid the Musicians.

A sextet of brass instruments, rehearsing the hymn tunes before the beginning of the service, caused a general removing of men's hats. It also started a twittering of birds which thereafter added their songs to the music and the discourse.

The services began at 5:15 a. m., six minutes before the actual sunrise. Hotels and apartment houses loomed between the outdoor assemblage and the point of the sun's appearance, but the evidences of a bright morning could be seen in rosy clouds. Before the service had gone far, the sun's reflection could be seen in the windows of Union boulevard hotels. Not until the final hymn was being sung did the rays directly strike the eyes of those looking eastward.

Trumpet Call at Opening.

A trumpet call signaled the opening, and the Rev. A. H. Armstrong, Secretary of the Church Federation, pronounced Scriptural sentences and led the gathering in the Lord's Prayer, after a moment of silence at sunrise. The Rev. Dr. Russell H. Stafford, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, led in scripture reading and prayer.

The selections from Van Dyke's poem were read by the Rev. Dr. W. L. Sullivan, pastor of the Unitarian Church of the Messiah. The first verse read was:

Thou who hast made Thy dwelling fair
In flowers below, above with stately lights,
And set Thine altars everywhere—
On mountain heights,
In woodlands dim with many a dream,
In valleys bright with springs,
And on the curving capes of every stream;

Thou who hast taken to Thyself the wings
Of morning, to abide
Upon the secret places of the sea,
And on far islands, where the tide
Visits the beauty of untrodden shores,

Waiting for worshippers to come to thee
In Thy great out-of-doors!
To Thee I turn, to Thee I make my prayer.

God of the open air,
The hymns sung were "Hark, Ten Thousand Voices," "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," and "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name!" Charles Galloway, organist of St. Peter's, conducted the music, without an organized chorus—a lack which it is intended to supply at future services of this character.

Address by Dr. Travers.

Dr. Travers' address was a sermon without a text, save for the Easter story from the Gospel of St. Mark, which had just been read.

"Life victorious over death, new life hereafter and here—here," the speaker repeated. "A truth so compelling that it alters the course of life. A truth so potent that it becomes the standard of ethics, a norm of morality, for all men of all times. Men are agreed they can pattern life after no better model than that which this truth expresses. I know of no other way to voice the change which came over the life of humanity as the result of the first Easter than to say, 'It is the Lord's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes.'"

"This is neither the time nor the place to try to convince and convert to a belief in immortality. One simply announces what this day declares. Each one of us here will interpret the resurrection of Jesus as he is able to understand and apprehend it. Irrespective of our religious or nonreligious affiliations, we hold in common the truth of Easter."

"We have literally come together on ground we own in common, where the trees and the grass, the shrubs and the flowers, the birds and the sunshine are for us free to enjoy. Under the aegis of religious freedom, in the spirit of love, in an effort to include all and exclude none, we have sought to express our oneness in the faith of life victorious over death."

Annual Service Probable.

As had been announced, no collection was taken. The service ended a few minutes before 6, as distant bells were ringing for early church services. Many paused to congratulate Dr. Travers, who had begun planning the service after he read in the Sunday Post-Dispatch of April 9, of the California sunrise services.

Dr. Travers said today that he hoped a citizens' committee could be formed to arrange for future services of this character. Easter next year falls on April 9, nine days earlier than this year.

Large Easter Audiences at All St. Louis Churches.

St. Louis churches had large Easter audiences yesterday. In several of the larger churches, all seating space was occupied, and late comers were placed in choir lofts and on balcony steps.

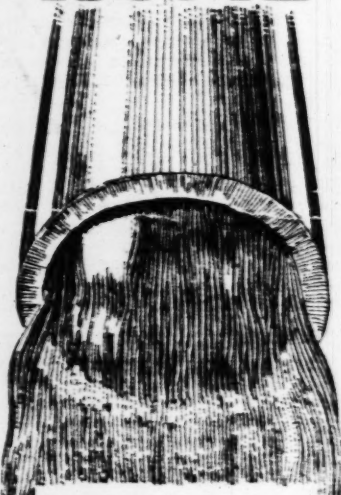

At the St. Louis Cathedral, 11 o'clock mass, celebrated by Archbishop Glennon, was attended by an overflowing congregation, after large gatherings at the earlier masses. Msgr. J. T. Tannath, pastor of the Cathedral, preached the Easter sermon.

Bishop F. F. Johnson of the Episcopal diocese preached at Christ Church Cathedral. The new organ was used for the first time for Easter music.

At the Scottish Rite Cathedral on Lindell boulevard, members of the Masonic order and their families heard an afternoon address of the Rev. Dr. M. Ashby Jones, pastor of the Second Baptist Church. The Rev. Henry McKenzie of Compton Hill Congregational Church spoke to the Knights Templar at the new Masonic Temple.

NEW YORK-TO-PARIS AIR RACE NARROWED TO TWO PLANES

Byrd Can't Compete for 6 Weeks.
Leaving Only American Legion and Acosta Entries.

NEW YORK, April 18.—A dual nonstop air race from New York to Paris was in prospect today as injuries forced Commander Richard E. Byrd, one of America's three foremost entries, from competition for at least six weeks.

The contest, as a result, apparently was narrowed to the plane American Legion, piloted by Lieutenant-Commander Noel Davis, and the Wright-Ballanca monoplane, in which Bert Acosta and Clarence D. Chamberlin shattered all records for endurance flying. No date has been set for the American Legion's take-off.

A new motor installed in the Wright-Ballanca craft was given preliminary tests by Acosta yesterday in a flight over Long Island. The pilot for the Ballanca plane has not yet been decided on, although the hop-off is scheduled to take place within two weeks. Nother Acosta nor Chamberlin is a navigator and the toss of a coin may decide which will go as pilot.

The accident to the Byrd plane, The America, occurred when it hit a soft spot of ground and turned over while landing after a test flight. Anthony Fokker, Byrd, Floyd Bennett and Lieut. George O. Noville were in the plane. Byrd had recovered sufficiently to leave the hospital and join his wife at a New York hotel, but Noville was suffering from shock, fractured right thigh and numerous lacerations. Noville, who was a radio operator on the flight, suffered contusions of the right hip joint and leg. Fokker was uninjured.

REPUBLICANS OF STATE CONFER ON PLANS FOR 1928

Committee Discusses Means for Closer Co-operation Between Rural and St.
Louis Leaders of Party.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

The danger to Republican success in Missouri in the election next year from the nomination by the Democrats of either Gov. Smith of New York or United States Senator Reed for the presidency was the principal reason for a conference at the American Hotel today of members of the Republican State Committee, leaders in the Republican organization in St. Louis and Republican officeholders in the State.

This is the first of a series of meetings which the Republicans expect to have during the coming 12 months, all designed to work a closer co-operation between the party organization in St. Louis and that in the State with a view to avoiding any material defection of Republicans in St. Louis to Smith or Reed if either should be nominated.

In two campaigns the Republicans have lost the State through the St. Louis vote going to a candidate avowedly "wet," or known to be "wet." In 1922 Reed won the senatorship practically by the St. Louis vote, and Harry B. Hawes repeated that last year.

Either Smith or Reed Feared.
With either Smith or Reed the Democratic nominee for the presidency in 1928, the same influences which took many thousands of Republican voters in St. Louis to support Reed and Hawes in their campaigns would operate to take them to Smith or Reed in the next campaign, or at least the Republican State organization is fearful they would.

The State organization was powerless in 1922 and again in 1926 in its efforts to stem the drift, and with the 1928 campaign coming on it is disposed to start early in building up the co-operation which leaders hope will hold most of the vote in line.

So far as can be ascertained no definite plans are under consideration, and some of the State leaders privately admit that the problem is one which likely will be too much for organization. The country districts are supposed to be "dry," the city is known to be "wet," and every previous effort to reconcile the differences have been unsuccessful. They are going to try again and keep on trying, but always in the hope that neither Smith nor Reed will be the Democratic nominee.

Own Nominees Also Considered.
Their plan, of course, will take into consideration the question of who will be the Republican nominee for United States Senator. Former Gov. Hyde has a strong hold on the rural Republicans, but his nomination would not be of material aid to the party in St. Louis. Hyde, because of his popularity outside the city might defeat a "wet" candidate if one was put forward in St. Louis, and that would not help any in the broad scheme to win the State.

The plans are unsettled, but there will be a lot of talk at each of the conferences.

The meeting today was called by former Mayor Kiel, chairman of the Republican State Committee, and Dr. E. B. Clements, National Committeeman. There has been some talk that Kiel has under consideration submitting his resignation, but if that is in contemplation it is not expected for several months.

GOVERNMENT FILES BRIEFS IN $30,000,000 FORD TAX SUIT

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Without attempting to set a valuation on Ford Motor Co. stock as of March 1, 1913, the Government today filed briefs before the Board of Tax Appeals in the $30,000,000 tax suit, declaring that the Internal Revenue Commissioner, who fixed a value of that date, was not empowered to bind the Government to use of such values as the basis for computation of gains of stockholders who might sell their holdings.

The petitioners, maintained that Commissioner Roper's valuation of $9489.34 per share was correct and that the treasury was inhibited from changing the estimate of the former commissioner for purposes of collecting further taxes.

No alleged action by the commissioner bars the Government from its right to payment of the true amount of the petitioners' tax liability and none of the cases involved the right or power of a commissioner to re-open a final decision or determination of a predecessor, the Government briefs declared.

Senator Couzens, of Michigan, and other former Ford minority stockholders are involved in the case, having resisted efforts of the Internal Revenue Bureau to reassess them for taxes.

Oregon Road Law Upheld.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The Oregon law of 1921, under which the State Highway Commission restricted the use of certain highways to solid tire trucks, and reduced to 16,500 pounds the loads they would be permitted to carry at certain seasons, was sustained today by the Supreme Court.

DR. J. C. WHITLEY'S WIFE GETS DIVORCE; WED 30 YEARS

She Waited Until Children Became of Age; Money Settlement Out of Court Reported.

Mrs. Maude H. Whitley obtained a divorce today from Dr. James C. Whitley, a physician, residing at 3800 Gurney court. Circuit Judge Taylor heard the case. Mrs. Whitley alleged general indignities.

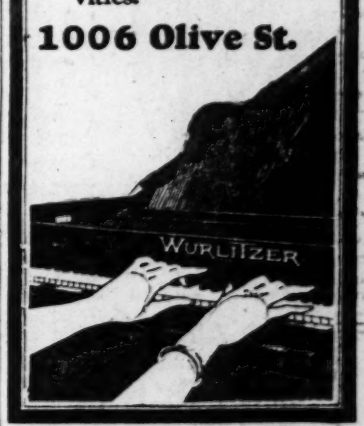

The Whitleys were married July 12, 1896, at Palestine, Tex. and separated Nov. 12, 1925. Mrs. Whitley testified that she waited until her two sons and a daughter became of age before filing suit. The daughter, Mrs. Geneva Kessler, is the former wife of Loren Murchison, noted St. Louis runner.

The divorce decree mentions no alimony, but it is understood a settlement was arranged out of court.

Kill that skin eruption at the start

Neglect of even the slightest skin rash, roughness, or chafing may have serious consequences. Painful, disfiguring complaints like eczema, scabrous sores, etc., all start in a small way. The safest plan is to keep a jar of Resinol Ointment ready to use at the first sign of skin trouble. It promptly stops itching and reduces inflammation and burning. The tiny pores readily receive this soothing ointment, and its healing influence is carried far below the surface of the skin.

Free trial size package
Your druggist sells Resinol Soap and Ointment, but if you wish to try before you buy, send to Dept. 71, Resinol, Baltimore, Md., for a free sample of each.

ROBBERS BEST POLICE IN EXCHANGE OF SHOTS

Four Men in Auto Escape After Holdup by Disabling Detectives' Car.

A revolver fight between three city detectives and four robbers who had just held up two Kroger stores ended at 9:30 a. m. today when the robbers disabled the detectives' automobile with bullets and shot on Ashland avenue, near Warne avenue, and escaped. Detective Melbourne McGranahan, 33 years old, of the Deer Street district was badly cut about the face by flying glass when the windshield of the police car shattered under the robbers' fire. More than 100 shots were exchanged during the automobile chase which lasted for nine blocks on Ashland avenue.

A Kroger store at 4501 Marguerita avenue was the first selected by the robbers in their foray. They held up the manager, Foster Gideon, at 9:15 a. m. and escaped with $103. The alarm was given and Detective McGranahan, with Detectives John Finn and Tom Ha-berding, set out to find the robbers. They surmised that the four robbers were the same gang which has been making a series of hold-ups recently and that the Marguerita Kroger store would not be the only one visited this morning. Acting on a "hunch," Detective McGranahan drove to the Kroger store nearest the one which had been held up. At this store, 2902 North Euclid, the detectives saw a Willys-Knight sedan parked with two men in it, and two others just leaving the store. The robbers had taken $75 from Virgil Burton, the manager.

The robbers started their machine north in Euclid and turned east into Ashland avenue. Detective McGranahan reported that they broke the rear glass out of their car and opened fire on the police machine with revolvers, rifles and shotguns.

EIGHT PERSONS HELD BY POLICE IN MURDER INQUIRY

Theory Is That Lee Evans, Carpenter, Was Slain
Elsewhere and Body Taken to Alley Where Found.

Seven men and a woman were held today at Dayton Street Police Station as suspects in the murder of Lee Evans, 46 years old, a carpenter, of 3418 Lucas avenue, whose bruised and beaten body was found in the alley behind Carpenters' Union Hall, Grand boulevard and Cozens avenue, at 9 p. m. Saturday.

Police believe Evans was murdered elsewhere and brought to the alley in an automobile. Six of the prisoners are carpenters who had been with Evans at various times during the afternoon preceding his death. The seventh man and the woman, his wife, were arrested because police were told Evans had had trouble with them.

Evans' body was found when police went to the alley in response to a telephone call that a suspicious machine had driven in there. The informant thought auto thieves were about to strip it of accessories. However, no machine was there when the police arrived, instead three men were leaning over an object in the alley. The men fled precipitantly when the police car drove in, and the object proved to be Evans' body.

It was in a sitting posture against the building wall and the coat was pulled up over the head. The skull was fractured and the face was badly bruised, with cuts and bruises which possibly were inflicted with a knife. There were no signs of a scuffle and the body was cold indicating Evans had been dead at least an hour.

Came Here From Tulsa. Investigating, detectives learned that Evans came from Tulsa a year ago, leaving his wife and children there. He had worked irregularly, frequenting the Carpenters' Union offices almost daily waiting for employment, and was there Saturday afternoon chatting and smoking with 10 or 12 other unemployed carpenters.

At the inquest today the verdict was hemorrhage of the brain as the result of a blow at the hands of parties unknown. There were only two witnesses. Albert Bishop, janitor of the building, said he observed Evans and another man pass the building and turn west on Cozens avenue at about 6:45 p. m. Bishop's grandson, Albert Dowd, eight years old, of 4479 Page boulevard, said he talked to Evans at the building at about 6 o'clock and a few minutes later watched Evans and a Negro he did not know boxing in the alley behind the building.

SAVES $1500 FROM BURGLAR Family Returns Home to Find Man Ransacking House.

The arrival home of Samuel Zucker and his wife, of 3513 McPherson avenue, saved $1500 hidden in the home early yesterday. A burglar ransacking the home was interrupted and ran out a rear door as they entered the front. A mesh bag, valued at $50, was taken by the thief. The money was not taken.

Burglars in the home of Henry Kuthe, 3705 Evans avenue, during the absence of the family, yesterday took three wrist watches, all presents to Mrs. Kuthe, a ring and $35 cash.

MAN WHO SHOT HIMSELF DIES Stephen Schutz Was Despondent Over Love Quarrel.

Stephen Schutz, 46 years old, an engineer, died at city hospital last night as the result of two bullet wounds self-inflicted last Friday in his room at 3277A Enright avenue. Police reported he has a wife from whom he is divorced and two children, living somewhere in St. Louis County.

At the time Schutz shot himself police were told he was despondent because of a quarrel with a woman to whom he had been paying attention.

The Bureau of Railway Economics, maintained by the carriers, said the figure exceeded by 1,249,117,000 net ton miles the best previous February record, established in 1924.

The Big Capacity MAYTAG Tub Makes Spring Cleaning easy

THE Maytag's satin-smooth cast-aluminum tub has an exceptionally large capacity. There is ample room for heavy blankets, draperies, curtains, fluffy rugs, and other bulky things that you want washed during spring cleaning time before you store them away.

The tub is heat-retaining—keeps water hot for an entire washing. Through adjustable legs, one of many Maytag comfort-giving features, the washer is easily raised or lowered to suit your height. The tub drains and cleans itself in 30 seconds after the washing is done.

The famous Maytag wringer sets close to the water level—does away with the lifting of heavy wet pieces and automatically adjusts itself to a heavy blanket or sheer handkerchief and wrings both equally dry.

VILMA BANKY ASKS PARENTS TO DROP SUIT FOR SLANDER

Former Wife of Hungarian Playwright Charged With Calling Her "Cat."

By the Associated Press.
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 18.—Vilma Banky, film star, yesterday cabled instructions to her parents in Hungary to drop a libel suit they had filed against Sari Fedak Molnar, former wife of Franz Molnar, the Hungarian playwright.

The suit was based on statements said to have been made by Madame Molnar when she returned to Hungary after a visit in the United States. She was quoted as declaring that Miss Banky had "turned against her countrymen," "is no true Hungarian" and "is a spiteful little cat."

The film actress said she incurred Madame Molnar's anger when she refused to sponsor an actor introduced by Madame Molnar as the "Hungarian Valentino."

NEW YORK EDITORS PRAISE SMITH'S REPLY

A Momentous Declaration, Complete and Explicit, Is Press Comment.

Samples of editorial comment on Gov. Smith's letter, published today, are as follows:

New York World—The whole American people is indebted to the editor of the Atlantic Monthly and to Mr. Charles C. Marshall, who created the occasion for the statement by Gov. Smith which is published this morning. For the Marshall letter and the Governor's reply an ancient controversy is lifted out of the muck of vulgar prejudice and ignorance into the plane of civilized discussion. It is high time that somebody had the courage and the intelligence to do this. For the question at issue, the relation between a man's duty to his country and his duty to a church, that transcends national frontiers, has for centuries engaged the attention of some of the noblest minds in the Western world. It is altogether too great a question to be dealt with, as it has for so long been dealt with, publicly in the United States, by wizards and goblins and others of a mean intelligence and an even meaner spirit.

Now, at last, the worst that anyone can allege against the claims of the church of Rome has been stated in the severest possible way. No anti-Catholic who has kept within the bounds of permissible argument has ever confronted American Catholics with as rigid and as documented an indictment as this letter of Mr. Marshall's. That the indictment is done with good manners and a kindly spirit makes it all the more forcible. It would not have been worth the effort, it would have been beneath his dignity for the Governor to reply to a challenge which was not so radical and so searching that it could be answered by an unqualified reply. If the challenge had merely been planted by some kind but mistaken friend who thought the Governor had mental reservations to conceal, the hollowness and sham of it would have been evident at once. It is possible to evade a great deal in politics. But it would have been impossible to answer this Marshall letter at all if it were not answered candidly.

The heart of Mr. Marshall's challenge to the Governor was contained in two quotations from two Popes and one quotation from an opinion of the Supreme Court. The first papal utterance is the encyclical letter of Leo XIII written in 1885, in which it is said that: "The Almighty has appointed the charge of the human race between two powers, the ecclesiastical and the civil, the one being set over divine and the other over human things."

Mr. Marshall proceeds from this to the Syllabus of Pius IX when the Pope said: "To say in the case of conflicting laws enacted by the two Powers the civil law prevails, is error."

Mr. Marshall then cites the Supreme Court of the United States (Watson versus Jones, 13 Wall. Page 379) to the effect that religious practices inconsistent with the peace and safety of State shall not be justified.

"The utterance of Pope Pius IX," Mr. Marshall says, "is irreconcilable conflict with the opinion of the Supreme Court. For the Pope claimed that in case of conflict the ecclesiastical law prevails, whereas the Supreme Court claims that the civil law prevails. How, then, asks Mr. Marshall, can a man be a loyal Catholic and yet give unqualified allegiance to the American Constitution?"

The Governor's reply, stripped to its essentials, is to assert first of all that "these encyclicals are not articles of our faith" and therefore not commandments binding him as a Catholic. Having denied the binding authority of the papal utterances which Mr. Marshall quotes, the Governor then cites an impressive list of American Catholic prelates, ending with an unqualified adoption of Archbishop Ireland's definition of "The church's attitude toward the State" in these words: "Both Americanism and Catholicism bow to the sway of personal conscience."

Finally, on his own authority, speaking as an American Catholic, the Governor makes this momentous declaration:

"I believe that no tribunal of any church has any power to make any decree of any force in the law of the land other than to establish the status of its own communicants within its own church."

upon a hideous prejudice, a slimy and un-American superstition, which has been threatening to dominate our public life but which after this will scarcely dare to raise its head in the open. Such is the value of personal character as demonstrated by Gov. Smith.

SLAIN DURING QUARREL OVER A CARD GAME

C. J. Meert, Student Mechanic of East Alton, Shot by Herbert Blake.

A Coroner's inquest will be held tonight into the death of Cornell C. J. Meert, 27 years old, a student machinist of East Alton, Ill., who was killed yesterday morning.

Herbert Blake, manager of the East Alton rooming house where Meert lived, following a quarrel over noise Meert and his companion were making in a card game. Blake was arrested immediately after shooting, and is held without bail in East Alton jail.

The rooming house keeper, turned home Saturday night, Mrs. Blake found a card game in progress on an upper floor of the house. The players were making considerable noise, and Blake went up to reprimand them. The noise did not subside, despite his protest, and Blake went to the room a second time, taking a revolver, when he flourished. The men in the room, among them Meert, started a quarrel with him. Blake, who was armed, went back to his room. Disgruntled yesterday morning the game did not come to an end, and the argument over noise was renewed. Blake and started down the stairs, according to other roomers, when Blake stepped out into the hall aimed at him and fired. One bullet struck him in the abdomen.

He passed through his body, killing him instantly. A second bullet imbedded in the wall.

Blake declared that Meert made a movement toward his hip pocket in walking down the stairs, but other roomers deny this. Their version of the shooting differs in many other particulars from that of the rooming house keeper.

Meert had been employed at a plant of the Western Cartridge Co. in East Alton for several months. He was a war hero, serving months with the Belgian army, being decorated twice for gallantry, by King Albert of Belgium. Near Ypres he captured a German machine gun nest unaided. His brothers, Joseph and John, reached East Alton from Kansas City, this morning, to take charge of the body.

NEW YORK EDITORS PRAISE REPLY MADE BY SMITH

Continued from Preceding Page. Going in and out before his critics for more than 20 years. The very jewel of his life has been his unquestioned integrity. Even his bitterest political opponents have vented their denunciations when he stands up before the whole country, as a good Catholic and declares that in all civil matters the church is subordinate to the State, the old charge that is not true cannot be raised without accusing Alfred Smith of falsehood. It will require his hood to do that. There may hereafter hole-and-corner whisperings about the danger of a man in the White House, who may be gossip in the cellars, hints, nudges, winks, innuendoes, but no one will come out into the light of day and assert that Smith is a liar.

His answers to Mr. Marshall's questions are downright, explicit, categorical. Every one of the "putations" thrown upon him by devout Catholics, who denigrate and reject in good set terms. So Gov. Smith is not speaking for himself alone; he makes a solemn test in behalf of millions of American citizens, perhaps one-sixth of our whole population. The act has been made to consider the matter of election to highest office in the land, a prescribed class. All others aspire, they may not.

When the first steps were taken in Catholic emancipation in England, and Catholics were allowed to vote but not yet to hold office, it was an indignant Protestant politician who exclaimed that, "the law had allowed Catholics to come out of jail, it still condemned them to wear prison garb."

This garment which Gov. Smith now wears off his co-religionists of the United States. Any public man who can sign his name as a Catholic to the noble profession of patriotic faith with which Gov. Smith concludes his answer to Marshall cannot be held back from the Presidency, unless after grace and bigotry succeed in finding our best.

WOMAN DROWNS WHEN TWO BOATS FAIL HER

Mrs. Anna Zerek Overturns Leaking Skiff and Tries to Jump Into Other.

Mrs. Anna Zerek, 19 years old, of Fairmont City, a suburb of East St. Louis, was drowned at 5:20 p. m. yesterday, when she overturned a leaking skiff and second boat, into which she attempted to jump, while rowing in a mile-wide lake of backwater between Fairmont City and Cahokia Creek.

Mrs. Helen Zerek, also 19, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Anna Zerek, and Miss Emma Jagerski, 18, of 428 Lynch avenue, East St. Louis, who were in the second skiff, had narrow escapes from drowning.

Mrs. Anna Zerek put off in a skiff by herself and was followed by the other young women in a second boat. When about 300 yards from shore, the skiff she was rowing began to leak badly. The second boat drew alongside and Mrs. Anna Zerek attempted to jump into it, overturning both boats.

Anna Zerek sank from view before Edward McClure, a clubhouse manager, who was rowing nearby, could reach the scene. McClure succeeded in drawing Miss Jagerski into his boat and she went to the aid of Helen Zerek, who had struck out for shore.

The place where the drowning occurred is in the Indian Lake bottoms, which have been flooded by backwater from Cahokia Creek. Mrs. Zerek's body had not been recovered this morning. Miss Jagerski, who sank several times before McClure reached her, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where she is being treated for shock and exposure.

MACDONALD UNPERTURBED BY DEFEAT IN OWN PARTY
Rejected as Treasurer by British Independent Laborites, He Goes On With U. S. Tour.

BOSTON, April 18.—Ramsay MacDonald apparently was unperturbed today by news from home that the Independent Labor party, the more extreme Laborite section, had failed to re-elect him as treasurer. "I expected it," he said. "They are angry with me because I don't go out on the house-tops and shout socialism." MacDonald has been a Socialist for 40 years.

The administrative council of the party omitted the customary nomination because MacDonald opposes some of the planks which the Independent Labor party wants the Parliamentary Labor party to adopt. At the annual conference of the Independent Labor party at Leicester yesterday a motion to force the council to nominate MacDonald was defeated, 112 to 118.

An opponent of MacDonald criticized him for lack of robust leadership and failure to adopt the policy of a standard living wage. MacDonald, who was Great Britain's first and only Labor Premier, put aside political matters today for sentiment. Thirty years ago he and his wife were in New England on their wedding trip. Yesterday he and his daughter, Isabel, visited Plymouth and other places MacDonald saw on his honeymoon trip.

PATIENT DROWNED IN BATH NOT SCALDED, INQUEST SHOWS
Chicagoan Suddenly Rendered Helpless in Locked Room at Hospital, Physician Thinks.

A verdict of death by drowning was returned today at the Coroner's inquest into the case of Charles Swift, 48 years old, a resident of Chicago, who was found dead in a bathtub of hot water at the Jewish Hospital Saturday afternoon.

Swift arrived in St. Louis at noon Saturday on his way from California to Chicago and was met by Dr. Arthur Strauss, 1835 W. W. Waterman avenue, who took him to the hospital to administer treatment for a nervous ailment. Swift requested a nurse to prepare his bath, and locked himself in the bathroom, where he was found by Dr. Strauss 30 minutes later. Although it was at first believed he was scalded to death, there were no indications in support of this theory, and it was his physician's opinion that he was suddenly rendered helpless and slipped beneath the water.

An aunt, Mrs. Flora Goodwin of 31 Arden Park, Chicago, was notified of the death.

"ARABESQ"
Armstrong's Newest Idea
an ultra-modern floor
at a surprisingly low cost

Openwork designs in which the colored linoleum base becomes part of the pattern. "Arabesque" decorations applied in low relief—a new surface texture.

If there's a floor in your house that is old and worn; if your present floor covering is a trifle shabby—then this new idea of Armstrong's designers spells love at first sight.

Armstrong's Arabesq Linoleum is an entirely new kind of linoleum floor. The base is Armstrong's Jaspé or Armstrong's Plain Linoleum in pleasing tones of gray, tan, blue, green. The decorations are cleverly applied with heavy oil colors so that the background peeps through as a regular part of the pattern.

Here is a new surface effect—an effect of actual low relief. A surface that sparkles with bright color, cheerful color; an easy-to-keep-clean surface—for dust and dirt rest lightly on it—ready to be whisked away under your dust mop.

Different in idea. Different in beauty. Different in its low price. Make it a point to see Armstrong's Arabesq and other new Armstrong patterns when you shop this week.

Inset Jaspé—Marble tiles. Also NEW notes
If you like Armstrong's Jaspé Linoleum with its two-toned ripple effect, you will like Armstrong's Inset Jaspé Linoleum.

Neat figures have been inserted at regular intervals in the open field, giving an appearance hitherto obtained only by a painstaking hand operation. The result is a floor that gives character to the largest of rooms without being at all obtrusive. Also ask to see Armstrong's Marbleized Tiles—a new graining effect in genuine inlaid linoleum.

Laid without bother for a lifetime of wear
Floors of Armstrong's Inlaid Linoleum require only proper laying—to be cemented, not tacked—and an occasional waxing, to make them good for a score of years. All inlaid patterns are double-pressed to insure a smooth surface, tiles neatly lined up, the whole floor waxed to a velvety finish—ready to be put down in your home.

Simple plans for home-decorating by Hazel Dell Brown
"The Attractive Home—How to Plan Its Decoration" describes this noted decorator's suggestions for rooms of unusual beauty based on pattern floors of Armstrong's Linoleum. Colorplates of model interiors and photographs illustrate her interesting story. Many patterns are shown in full color. Sent upon receipt of ten cents.

WIFE OBJECTED TO HIS TIES, DENTIST SAYS

John Paull Jones of East St. Louis Asserts Her Relatives Abused Him.

Members of his wife's family called him names and treated him as outcast, and his wife nagged him about his clothing and his table manners, Dr. John Paull Jones, East St. Louis dentist, told Judge Cook and a jury in East St. Louis City Court today. This is his second day as a witness opposing his wife's suit for separate maintenance.

The dentist grew weak on the stand Friday, owing to a heart malady, and the trial was postponed until today. He filed a cross bill asking divorce.

Abuse by Telephone.
A week or two before his wife's birthday in August, 1926, and about a year after their quarrel-wrecked honeymoon, he said, one of Mrs. Jones' brothers telephoned him and denounced him as "a low coward," "yellow up the back" and "white livered," and that his heart was black.

The dentist had failed to find Mrs. Jones at home and had no idea where she was, he testified, but the brother accused him of driving Mrs. Jones into the street by his cruelty. The dentist said he told his brother-in-law, politely, to mind his own business, and hung up, but his opportunity for revenge on his wife's birthday a week later. The brother had not yet apologized for the abuse so Dr. Jones refused the olive branch offered by his wife's family when they invited him to take part in the birthday rites by reading a poem one of them had written.

"You'd better let some member of the family read it," Jones told the assembled relatives.

"Sickly Brown" Suit.
His wife made fun of his clothing and went so far as to purchase a "sickly brown" suit for him which he couldn't wear, Jones said, and she disliked the red ties he affected, but he kept on wearing them.

The dentist testified that his wife ordered him to discharge Miss Laura Litsey, 22 years old, a nurse in his dentist's shop but he said he couldn't have done that even if he had wished to, because she is a partner in the business. He admitted that when he had pursued one of Miss Litsey's admirers with a pistol, he refused to give up the weapon to his wife, but yielded it to Miss Litsey.

"I promised her mother I'd be responsible for her," he said.

The case is not likely to reach the jury for at least two days.

STIMSON ARRIVES IN NICARAGUA TO GET FACTS FOR COOLIDGE

President's Envoy Expects to See Diaz Today; Says News Must Come From Washington.

By the Associated Press.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 18.—Henry L. Stimson, former American Secretary of War, was ready today to begin his conferences, with the object of learning, as the personal representative of President Coolidge, the true state of affairs in Nicaragua. He arrived yesterday from Corinto, where he had landed in the morning from the Cruiser Trenton, from Panama.

Stimson said he hoped to see the Conservative president, Adolfo Diaz, today, but emphasized that little news would develop at this end from his visit, as all his observations would be reported direct to the State Department at Washington and to President Coolidge.

Regarding reports that his visit was in connection with revision of the treaty proposal made by President Diaz regarding American canal rights through Nicaraguan territory, or intervention by the United States in the civil strife in Nicaragua, Stimson remarked said all information concerning his mission must be given out at Washington. He did say, however, that he planned to look over the entire situation from an impartial standpoint.

Three Double Plays

By J. Roy Stockton.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Editor. CINCINNATI, April 18.—Today prevented the third game of the series between the champion Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds. The final game of the Cardinals' first road trip of the year is scheduled for tomorrow. Despite two defeats in the series, the Cardinals are still in the opening game in Cincinnati. Cardinals can still make a respectable record on their first campaign of the season, and Jess Haines slated to pitch the main game of the series. The world champions' prospect returning with four victories in four defeats are excellent. Haines may be bothered by lame left ankle, but that is probable. It is the left ankle. Haines' weight will fall on the foot after he has made his series. He won't finish over pain that is coming. He'll pitch though he had no bad foot and pain will be his only, except he probably will cause much among the ambitious clouters assembled under the Red banner Jack Hendricks. At any rate, Jess is scheduled to take mound tomorrow, and if he is good as he was against the Cardinals, he ought to break the Carl Mays and beat the submarine pitcher.

Was a Team Victory. No team can look more like a championship aggregation, who wins than the club that Bob O'Reil is leading this year. The sell yesterday before the placed slants of Grover Cleveland Alexander, but it was more a victory than a triumph for Pete. The Cardinals looked part of champions. They spectacularly fought in the inning and finally battered way to victory by bunting hits after two were out in the frame.

All the strong points of a championship team manifested themselves. There were brilliant field plays, lightning double plays and a spectacular outfield play bullet-like throw by Chick H.

HOLLEYS BEAT SPARTA, 2-1, IN WESTERN SOCCER FINAL

VISSER GETS BOTH GOALS FOR VICTORY

A. Burger Tallies Lone Goal for Chicago Eleven—Dick, Detroit's Goalie, Proves Outstanding Star.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 18.—The Holley eleven of Detroit upheld its unblemished record of the year here yesterday, defeating the Chicago Sparta soccer football team, 2 to 1, in the Western division final of the national soccer championship.

Dick, Holley goalie, saved the game for the visitors many times, when the sparta crew had excellent opportunities to score on penalties. The Holley goalie had his hands full practically all of the game because of the persistent offensive play of the Bohemians, who kept the ball close to the enemy goal during a majority of the play.

Visser, the Holley's high center from Holland, scored both of the winners' goals. Previous to coming to this country he played in many international games for Holland against European countries, and his training there stood him in good stead.

Detroit First to Score.
A. Burger, Sparta center, was the only man to score for the Bohemians. His offensive work was a close match for that of Visser. The Holleys were first to score when Visser took the ball on a short kick and by some beautiful footwork put it in the cage.

The Sparta center scored in the first minute of the second half, when the ball was taken with almost perfect team work from the kickoff and caged with ease, before the Holley defense could realize what it was all about. The ball remained in Holley territory for more than 10 minutes, but the Bohemians were unable to add the final dash that would put the play past the Holley goal.

Upon the failure of another attempt, the Detroit defense sent the ball down the field of Visser, who manipulated it again for his second goal of the day and winning the game.

During the final minutes of play the Spartans had repeated opportunities to score.

GOAL IN LAST 2 MINUTES WINS FOR KILLARNEYS

St. Louis Municipal Soccer Champions Overcome 2-Point Deficit to Defeat Kansas City Eleven, 3 to 2.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 18.—The Killarneys, St. Louis municipal soccer champions, yesterday won the unofficial title of the State by defeating the Hutchinson All Stars 3 to 2, at Tramway Park. The All Stars represented the soccer league of Kansas City. The match, witnessed by only 300 persons, was fast and bitterly fought throughout.

The Hutchinson supporters entertained visions of their team as State champion when they scored after seven minutes of hard battling.

Zachow, outside left, tallied the first goal of the game. Up to that time, the All Stars had all the better of the game, the goal being the culmination of a concentrated drive. The All Stars added another point to their total shortly after goal from Casselman's brilliant goal from scrimmage.

Up to this point, the vaunted Killarney attack seemed to fade. It finally buckled itself to tally two goals, one by Cronin and the other by Benoit, and went out at the half with scores tied, 2 to 2.

Killarneys Put On Storm.
The Roses carried their offensive into the second half full force, and during the early part of the period, kept the ball in the All-Star territory. Only the great defensive work of Bruce saved the Hutchinson goal on more than one occasion. After 15 minutes of the period had passed, the fury of the attack was spent and the All Stars began to march down the field in turn.

Brilliant Defense Enabled Alexander to Trim Reds, 2-1

that stood out as the feature of a day of brilliant feats.

Frankie Frisch figured prominently in the victory, just as his work stood out Saturday, even in defeat. Yesterday he made three hits in four chances, drove in the run that put the Cards ahead and figured in three double plays that helped to stop the rampant Reds and make it a pleasant Easter for the champions.

Cardinals Rally in Fifth.
Alexander was hit harder than usual. The Reds collected nine safeties but only twice did they get more than one in an inning and the Old Master, except in the first inning, always had enough in reserve to check the Redlegs when they threatened to score. In that opening inning, Christensen banged a single to right, went to second on Dreesen's sacrifice and scored when Walker Pipp scored a single over second, just out of Thevenow's reach.

That was the Reds' only run and the only marker of the contest until the fifth when the champions rallied with two out. Douthitt started the drive with a single to center and helped by stealing second. Billy Southworth delivered in the pinch with a double to right scoring Douthitt and Frisch sharply to center, scoring Southworth with the run that put the cards ahead.

The real story of the game was in the wonderful defense that the Cardinals threw around Alexander and the brilliant throw that Chick Hafey made in the sixth inning. Curly Walker led off in that frame with a tremendous clout to left and the ball sailed to the scoreboard and under ordinary circumstances it would have been a triple without effort, but Hafey grabbed the ball as it bounded back from the fence and uncoiled one of his best throws ever seen on any diamond. The ball traveled low and on a line. It was too far for any human to throw all the way, but the ball traveled low and bounced into Lester Bell's hands on the first hop.

Was a Tremendous Throw.
It was such a tremendous throw that the ball had lost its force when it reached the third sacker.

HEAVY-HITTING CLUBS DOMINATE BOTH MAJOR LEAGUES

BIG PUNCH IS RESPONSIBLE FOR UPSETS

Boston Braves and Phillies
Both Ahead of World Champion Cardinals Because They Score More Often.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Deep thinking, it seems, still is to run a disconcerting second to deep hit-ing in the major leagues, in spite of the alleged decrease in the agility of the official ball. At least, I should so judge by the returns from the first week of the 1927 season, at hand today.

The first six days of the campaign find the New York Yankees out at the pace in the American League, and how did they get there? Quite so: Wilmer wins the runless stepladder. They got there by scoring 52 runs and 76 hits in 30 more than six games, five of which they won by an ample majority, the other being tied.

Strong Armed to the Front.

In the National League, the Pittsburgh Pirates are front-running the situation with four victories in the series. They also strong-armed their way to the front, their record showing an average of almost six runs and more than 10 hits per game. The Giants, in four games, can show an average of more than six runs and 10 hits a game, and, in consequence, are only half game back of the Pirates.

The Boston Braves and Phillies likewise are off to a higher rating than the intelligentsia decreed and again the punch is the answer. The Braves in breaking even, have averaged five runs and 11 hits, and the Phillies slightly less in both departments, in winning four and losing two.

In fact, there is only one salient exception to the rule, the Philadelphia Athletics, and even they finally have started after the leaders, after getting three defeats and a tie in their first four games with the Yankees. Pitching has been the Athletics' trouble to date; they have the men but the men haven't had the stuff, Sam Gray, in winning over the Senators yesterday, being the first of Mack's pitchers to start and finish the same game.
Of course, the club will move with less friction when one or two changes are made; these seem to be inevitable, but at least an outfit that uses 17 pitchers in six

NO. 8. SCAPA FLOW.
By Clement Glaub.
Scapa Flow, leading 2-year-old son of Man o' War and eligible for the Kentucky Derby, is more likely to follow in the footsteps of W. R.
Coe's Pompey than in those of Crusader, for it is probable that Jeffords' colt will not start in many races this season.

The colt runs with his head high and does not fancy a distance more than a mile. In none of his races last season did Scapa Flow show a disposition to come from behind, and in his longest test, the Futurity, not quite six furlongs, he was all out to beat Candy Queen by a nose.

Fator, who was in the saddle, said after the race that he did not use the whip, because he was afraid Scapa Flow would quit under him.
Scapa Flow did run some smashing races last year and perhaps his best was in the Saratoga Special, in which he was beaten by Chance Shot. He suffered a lot of interference in the Hopeful Stakes, in which he finished third. Scapa Flow won the United States Hotel

Stakes and beat a field of good 2-year-olds at even weights. The six furlongs was turned in 1:14.2-5 over a heavy track.

There is likelihood that Scapa Flow's preference for short distances will somewhat handicap his chances in the Kentucky Derby, if Jeffords decides to send him to the post. Tomorrow—General Lee.

over the fence for a home run and coming home steps on plate ahead of runner on first. Which is out? H. M. A.
The batter is out.

Runners are caught between third and home by a fine throw. Umpire declares that two men cannot be caught that way and calls both out. Was he right? H. M. A.
The umpire had no authority of any character to make such a decision.
Can a player call for time if he is on second base and wishes to change his shoe which has become cut? Amateur.
Time may be called for that purpose.

Swedish Schoolmaster to Open Outdoor Running Campaign At Harvard.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, April 18.—Edvin Wide, Swedish middle distance runner, will make his first appearance on the outdoor season within two weeks at the Harvard Stadium, and soon after will go to California, where he plans to run against a picked team of American Indians, says a statement by his coach, Carl Anderson. At Cambridge Wide probably will run a mile and a quarter, but the length of the projected race with the Redskins was not announced.

The running schoolmaster finished the indoor season in poor condition Saturday when he was able to do a mile no faster than

W. Virginia Drops Football Shift

By the Associated Press.
MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 18.
WEST VIRGINIA UNIVERS-ITY'S famous football shift has been abandoned.
Athletic officials announcing the change said that because the "penalties upon the Mountaineers last fall" overbalanced the benefits derived from the shift, it would not be employed this fall. The play has been used since 1921.

Offers $200,000 For Walker Bout

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, April 18.—An offer of a $200,000 purse for a middleweight championship fight here between Mickey Walker, present titleholder, and Joe Dundee of Baltimore was wired yesterday to Jack Kearns, Walker's manager by Benjamin Franklin, president of the Olympia Athletic Club. The offer is contingent however, upon Dundee's capturing the welterweight title in his battle with Pete Latso scheduled for June 3 at the Polo Grounds, New York. "The directors of a Baltimore syndicate," authorized Franklin to make the offer, he said. The bout would be held at the local stadium, which would seat 120,000 spectators.

cision over Buckley in a closely contested feature of the lightweight surprises of the district meet, as Buckley was previously regarded as a strong favorite. Wood was subsequently defeated by Dwight Fryer of Little Rock, Ark., in the ti-

- Best—Miller Boy.

An extremely close race looms as a possibility in the eighth race tonight at the greyhound oval with Steeple View, Silver Tip and Seadone bunched. There is little to choose between the three. Seadone, said to be faster than Countess Claren, a sensation in the South, is at top form.

Sprinters are matched in the fourth and judgment, on his last race, appears to be best. Wasteful Girl in her last start was knocked down at the first turn, suffering no injury, and will be a contender. Teumseh Blue may be in too fast company.

There is little to choose between Peter Pan, Tangara and Tipity Witchet in the seventh. The former must be given the call because of his superior speed.

Mandell returned to Chicago Saturday from a trip of nearly a year, boxing local aspirants in all parts of the country.

Ruth Not Among Five Home-Run Leaders After First Week's Play

But Yankees Worry Along With Gehrig Just As Well—National Has 16 Circuit Drivers to 10 for American.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 18.—Five home-run hitters, three in the National League and two in the American, are tied with two apiece at the end of the first week of the baseball season today, and Babe Ruth is not among them. The Babe has performed his specialty but once, while two of the five leaders have registered two round trips in a single game.

The home run king of the National League, Hack Wilson of Chicago, is one of the five, and his teammate, Earl Webb, ex-Louisville Colonel, entered the hall of fame by getting two homers in the opening contest of the season, contributing to the downfall of Grover Cleveland Alexander.

Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees duplicated Webb's feat yesterday. Rogers Hornsby, the former Cardinal in a Giant uniform, is the third National leaguer with two. Al Simmons of the Athletics in the American League also has two to his credit. The National League so far has scored nearly twice as many home runs as the American League, the score standing 18 to 10. Home run hitters, including yesterday's games, are:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.
Gehrig, Phila., 2; Palk, Chicago, 2; Simmons, Phila., 2; Kamm, White Sox, 2; Hoyt, Yankees, 2; Williams, Phila., 2; Wilson, Chicago, 2; Taylor, Boston, 2; Webb, Chicago, 2; Moore, Boston, 2; Terry, New York, 2; Scott, Phila., 2; Grimm, Chicago, 2; Williams, Phila., 2; Partridge, Brook., 1.

Goldstein Touted For Match With Terris This Fall

By Fair Play.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Ruby Goldstein is a big frog in a little puddle. Ruby has been playing the small clubs and scoring sensational knockouts in quick order. Now the anvil chorus is being sung by the peevish ones and the gist of the songs is "Let him go out and fight someone worth while."

An effort is being made to match Ruby with Sid Terris. This fight would attract everyone in the greater city and environs. Hymie Cantor is looking after Goldstein and he is risk his prodigy with a finished performer like Terris. Ruby declares that he will be ready for Terris in September.

Goldstein has the punch. He has proved that. One thing is necessary he has yet to prove, and that is the heart. If he can come through he may yet fool the skeptics. This summer should definitely decide his status in the fight racket.

1700-MILE MOTOR BOAT RACE WILL BE HELD DURING JUNE

PEORIA, Ill., April 18.—The Lakes-to-Gulf Race Association officials closed a two days' session here yesterday when it awarded a 1700-mile lap of its proposed 1700-mile speed boat race against time to Fred Scheiben of Greenville, Miss.

Scheiben will attempt to run his mile a minute craft from Greenville to New Orleans without a stop. The remaining mileage of the event will be covered in relays of various distances by boats flying the burgee of the L. G. R. A.

The proposed race will be held early in June and will be the longest fresh water race ever attempted.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 18.—George Voight of Washington yesterday added the Mason and Dixon amateur golf championship to his list of laurels, by defeating A. Stranahan of Toledo, 11 and 10, in their 28-hole final match at the Greenbrier Golf Club here.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 18.—Members of the license committee of the new Illinois Turf Association start examination of jockeys and trainers today in preparation for the opening of Chicago's 1927 racing season Thursday, at Aurora. A 25-day meeting will be held there. More than 1400 horses are quartered at the track, which has been rebuilt into a full mile oval.

After Aurora, the horses will be shifted to Washington Park at Homewood. If the officials of that track succeed in arranging certain financial difficulties which have made their meeting uncertain.

"Where CONCENTRATION Pays Advertisers"

Eddie Cantor, Famous Star of Musical Comedy and the Follies

writes:

"My voice must be in condition 365 nights a year and when I smoke, I insist upon Lucky Strikes because I found from experience that they don't irritate my throat."

Eddie Cantor

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection

When in New York you are cordially invited to see how Lucky Strikes are made at our exhibit, corner Broadway and 45th Street.

The Billionarea is the Greater St. Louis market as it actually exists and as officially designated by the Audit Bureau of Circulations. Its boundary is simply the physical limits of metropolitan St. Louis on both the Missouri and Illinois sides of the Mississippi. It includes all (and only) that area where concentration of People, Dollars and Coverage (P+D+C) offers a volume market at low cost for advertisers. It is one of America's greatest market opportunities.

When you draw The Billionarea boundary you discover a big market opportunity

In defining a market, the sales manager or advertising executive is not concerned with territory—he is not concerned with state lines, county lines or arbitrary circles drawn on the map—but he IS vitally concerned with people, buying power and accessibility.

Knowing where to draw the line of a market is an all important factor in the success of selling and advertising.

Take an actual close-up map of the St. Louis district. You can see exactly where the thickly settled areas end and where the sparsely settled country districts begin. When you draw a line around this area of concentrated population, you are marking the actual boundary lines of The Billionarea. The Billionarea is, therefore, no mythical or artificial sales territory but a descriptive name given to the Greater St. Louis Market as it actually exists. The boundary line of The Billionarea is not only the actual market line of Greater St. Louis but—

It is the boundary within which population, purchasing power and newspaper coverage are so concentrated that it makes it possible to sell in volume at the lowest sales and advertising cost.

It is the boundary that definitely and properly excludes the thin, scattered areas of comparatively low purchasing power which cannot be covered economically either by salesmen or advertising.

The Billionarea has an annual purchasing power far in excess of a billion dollars, with family purchasing power far above the average of other metropolitan cities.

It is one of the greatest volume consuming markets in America for practically any product. It has more than a million people concentrated in an area of only 16 by 21 miles.

It has one newspaper that reaches practically every home of purchasing power consequence at a lower advertising cost than is possible in any other major market. That newspaper is the St. Louis Post-Dispatch—it has by far the greatest circulation in The Billionarea, and carries the greatest volume of local, national and classified advertising.

KANSAS CITY CAR COMPANY PROPOSES TO REDUCE FARES

New Schedule Involves Slight Cuts in Quantity Purchases of Traction Tickets.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 18.—The Kansas City Public Service Co., which took over operation of the Kansas City (Mo.) street railway, following a recent reorganization, today filed with the Public Service Commission a new schedule of fares, involving slight reductions on quantity purchases of tickets. The new schedule carries out the fare requirements of the Kansas City ordinance granting the company a new franchise. It leaves the single cash fare at 8 cents, or two tokens for 15 cents. It provides for sale of 10 tickets for 70 cents, or 7 cents a ride, and sale of 15 tickets for $1, or 6.6 cents a ticket. Fares for children under 12 years of age are 4 cents cash, four tickets for 15 cents, 10 tickets for 35 cents and 30 tickets for $1. The schedule will become effective May 1.

The present schedule of fares is single cash fare, two 8-cent tokens for 15 cents; five tickets for 35 cents. Fares for children are one-half of the rate for adults. An application also was filed by the company for authority to sell to the Kansas City Power and Light Co., the street railway's power plant, for $2,500,000. The application also seeks approval of a contract to be executed between the two companies, once the sale is completed, for supplying power by the Kansas City Power and Light Co. to the Kansas City Public Service Co. for operation of the street railways.

EASTER CROWD OF 6000 WORSHIPS WITH COOLIDGES

Police Reserves Maintain Order at Entrance to Auditorium Used for Services.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Easter services of the First Congregational Church, which President and Mrs. Coolidge attended yesterday, drew chief attention from Washington crowds and police reserves were called upon to handle the throng which sought entrance to the auditorium, where the church held its services. Despite the crowd, President and Mrs. Coolidge found little difficulty making their way into the auditorium by the regular entrance. They took seats in the congregation of almost 6000 near the front on the main floor.

Members of the Daughters of the American Revolution were special guests. Admission to the services which was the largest church assembly ever held here, was by ticket, but after 10:45 a. m., all seats remaining unfilled were turned over to the crowd which literally stormed the entrances. Mrs. Coolidge, elegantly dressed in a brown hat, trimmed with black and tan ribbon, and turned up in back, the dress was embroidered with large dots and their touch of rose color blended with her hat and a red fox fur which was draped on her shoulders. She wore a single pearl in each ear. The Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, took as his topic "God calls life," and his text was the fourth verse of the sixth chapter of Romans.

POLICE REFUSE TO AID IN TEST SO JUDGE DISMISSES MAN

Truck Driver Offers to Prove Machine Won't Go 45, and Jurist Consents.

When police refused assistance to a sporting proposition made to a truck driver charged with speeding, by Police Judge Rosecan today, the defendant was allowed to go free for his willingness to submit to the test. Friday afternoon Philip Rhombert, 21 years old, of 4018 Dunlap avenue, was arrested, charged with driving his repair truck 45 miles an hour between Alleman avenue and Kingshighway on Kingshighway road. Today in court Rhombert said his car couldn't go that fast. Judge Rosecan offered to dismiss the case if he could prove his contention, with the provision that he should pay a double fine, amounting to $90, if he failed.

At the police garage, however, where Rhombert went, in company with two motor cycle policemen for a police car to pace him, his case was denied by Sgt. La Tour, who said he could not sanction speeding on the city streets. Judge Rosecan was informed, and gave the defendant the benefit of the doubt, discharging him.

FISCAL CRISIS IN JAPAN CAUSES FALL OF CABINET

Privy Council Disapproves Ministry's Proposal to Aid Bank of Formosa With Loan of $100,000,000.

BANK SUSPENDS SOME BRANCHES

Five Other Financial Institutions Recently Closed—Troubles Are Attributed to Earthquake.

By the Associated Press. TOKIO, April 18.—The Japanese Cabinet has resigned following rejection by the Privy Council of the Government's plans to extend financial aid to the Bank of Taiwan, Ltd. (the Bank of Formosa), through the Bank of Japan.

The Taiwan Bank is reportedly one of the chief creditors of the great exporting and importing firm of Sunkei & Co., which recently suspended payment. The Ministers tendered their resignations yesterday. Emperor Hirohito requested Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki to carry on the duties of his office pending selection of his successor.

When the Privy Council announced its disapproval of the Government's proposed ordinance to give substantial aid to the bank, the Ministers, headed by Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki, tendered their resignations. Pending the selection of a successor, the Emperor requested Premier Wakatsuki to carry on the duties of his office.

Representatives of leading banks agreed to arrange for temporary assistance for the Bank of Formosa. It was announced that for three weeks, beginning today, the bank would suspend business except at the Headquarters Office and at branches in Formosa.

Trading on the Tokyo Stock Exchange was suspended for an hour at the opening today, as a consequence of the announcement, after which prices were somewhat lower than on Saturday. At Osaka stocks dropped from 2 to 6 points. Some vernacular newspapers expressed the opinion that Baron Takahashi, head of the Seiyukai party, might be appointed Premier. Other papers stated that whoever was appointed probably would serve only until the convening of a special session of the Diet soon for the purpose of immediate dissolution, after which elections would be held within three months.

The newspaper Hochi, in an editorial declared that financial stabilization was more important than China or the arms conference. The vernacular newspapers generally were inclined to approve the action of the Privy Council, blaming the financial policy of Premier Wakatsuki.

Runs on Banks. For several weeks general uneasiness has been apparent in Japan through runs on banks in Tokyo and vicinity. Nine banks closed before the Government was able to ease the financial situation. Financial quarters emphasized today that the fiscal difficulties were a direct outcome of the disastrous earthquake of 1923, in which numerous companies and individuals suffered extended losses. The Government proposed to support the Bank of Taiwan with a loan of up to 200,000,000 yen ($400,000,000).

NEW MENACES RISE IN EUROPE, HEAD OF REICHSTAG SAYS

Herr Loeb Foresees Symptoms of Return to Former Policy of Might and Intrigues.

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, April 18.—"Dark as April clouds are the new menaces appearing on the foreign political horizon," Herr Loeb, president of the Reichstag, declared in an Easter message to the Bolshen Courier. President Loeb sees symptoms of return to the former policy of might and diplomatic intrigues, already beginning to start negotiations in various corners of Europe.

Seven years after President Wilson's intervention in the world's political squabbles, the public demand for full publicity of diplomatic negotiations is louder than ever, he declares. Loeb describes the manner of carrying on the permanent negotiations as "highly indicative of the honesty and good faith of the parties concerned."

Loeb to Speak at Yale Dinner. WASHINGTON, April 18.—Chief Justice Taft of the United States Supreme Court will be the principal speaker at a "round-table" Yale dinner Wednesday evening. His address will be broadcast by two radio networks, including stations.

Of Making Many Books

By John G. Neihardt

BRACKLE THE FOOL. By Klamm, (Putnam.)

It is safe to say that everyone who read "Peter the Czar" early last year remembers it with a certain vividness. That is a tremendous little book. It is a power could be transformed into a physical energy. "Peter the Czar" hit the hundred average novels, could draw them into a single point. The book is a power, by the mood it created, and if that mood were to be represented visually, the resultant picture would be one of driving darkness, with lightning bolts of light. The book is a power, by the mood it created, and if that mood were to be represented visually, the resultant picture would be one of driving darkness, with lightning bolts of light.

"Peter the Czar" was a little book, "Brackie the Fool," by the same author, is more so. Both are undoubtedly products of the post-war mood acting upon a powerful and highly sensitive personality.

Those who like to have their emotions literally interpreted might be pleased to find Brackie represents those "impractical" values and aspirations that alone distinguish mankind from the brute, and yet are always more or less out of luck in this shrewd world.

But, alas, Brackie too is human and can not live up to the best he sees. If he blunders upon sublimity, he also falls into the mire. When he is deemed most a fool and foolish when he deems himself most wise.

The story of his adventures in a topsy-turvy world has the incoherence of a dream wherein there is no one to distinguish between absurdity and truth. There is plenty of laughter in the preposterous dream, but it is saddening laughter, and the sorrow is grotesque and mirth-provoking. Passages of great insight and beauty peep through vulgarities.

That the author was thinking of the war and its effect upon the world, is shown by a scene in which the Fool banishes the people, accusing them individually of all the ills that have befallen men and insisting that all do penance. And the people, deeply moved by his terrifying exhortation, fall to weeping and mirth-provoking. Passages of great insight and beauty peep through vulgarities.

So Brackie, despairing, summons all the grave-diggers in the kingdom and when these arrive, a great throng, he cries out to them:

"You must at last begin to bury the living! Why need you wait until every man die? Bury the living! Under the earth with the earth!"

If in this adventure Brackie was indeed a fool, surely he blundered upon wisdom in another which was as follows: One evening in his wanderings, he came to the portal of a cloister and knocked and was taken in by consecrated women there; and it was a sanctuary of peace and loving kindness. But it happened one day that Brackie began to question the reality of the gentle-hearted nuns. Maybe, after all, they were "but mere symbols, silver allegories" and perhaps "such perfect beings could not exist."

And upon waking next morning, he found himself in a very ancient ruin and "the dev was on his cheek and he shivered with the cold."

"And so Brackie wandered sadly, grown wiser and content in future to believe in the good, so that it might abide with him—he believed in it no matter in what shape it might come to him."

The story of "Brackie the Fool" must be read creatively. It can be made as big or as little as you like.

WHY RELIGION. By Horace M. Kallen. (Boni & Liveright.)

In the beginning of his discussion of a great question, to the answer of which he is committed by the very title of his book, this author promises much.

"I do not anticipate that what I say here will delight the champions of religion or fortify its opponents. I have sought to treat religion as what it is, a confused event in history and a complex institution in civilization; to analyze without judging, to understand without embracing. My study purports to be a dissection and not a dissection."

It is not without misgivings that the promise is read, for it is an undertaking beset with difficulties which call for the skill of a master workman. The promise is kept because the man who makes it is that kind of a workman. And, as always when a master hand moves, the thing is done without apparent effort.

As a surgeon, unflinchingly but dispassionately, he dissects down to the essential forces and insights of religion, differentiating them from the casual fortunes of churchly embracing. My study purports to be a dissection and not a dissection."

FAY BAINTER TOPS PLEASING VAUDEVILLE AT THE ORPHEUM

Clever Star Makes Debut on the Variety Stage With Bits From Her Successes.

Fay Bainter, latest vaudeville recruit from the "legitimate" stage, is offering three gripping bits from as many of her successes as her headlining contribution on the week's program at the Orpheum Theater. Her sketch, "The High Spots," is based on her desire to go into vaudeville and the manner in which she decides to take the step. Miss Bainter received an enthusiastic greeting yesterday and it was evident that her vaudeville style is to be a most pleasant one. There's a scene from "East Is West" which gives her a chance to display the talents for which she is noted as do two other equally interesting portrayals. Jane Seymour and Ashley Cooper lend the star fine assistance.

Emile Boreo's musical clowning and characterizations, the comic Jarvis-Harrison team and the dancing "Sonny" Jarvis; Zella Santley and her well-done character songs; Plinks and Ayres, clever roller-skaters, and Maharana and Rosie, a trained white elephant, round out a pleasing program.

The feature photoplay, "The Price of Honor," with Dorothy Revier and Malcolm McGregor, tells a stirring story in which the hangman and his noose are portrayed on the screen in no uncertain fashion. T. P. B.

MISS EMMA A. MEYERS, SCHOOL TEACHER FOR 50 YEARS, DIES

Miss Emma A. Meyers, 84 years old, a teacher for more than 50 years in the public schools, died yesterday morning at the St. Louis Altemheim, 5400 South Broadway. She had been ill for five months. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 4 p. m. at the home.

Miss Meyers came to St. Louis from Allenton, Mo., in 1874, and at once took up teaching. Assigned first to the Carr School, she taught later at the O'Fallon School, and in 1890 was made an assistant principal at Pope School. She was teaching at the Gratiot School, at the age of 82, when she retired in 1925.

Because of her long service in the schools, she had an unusually wide acquaintance among St. Louisans of every type and neighborhood.

TEXT OF MARSHALL LETTER

NEW YORK, April 18.—The open letter by Charles C. Marshall, attorney and authority on canon law, to Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, printed in the April issue of the Atlantic Monthly, follows:

Copyright, 1927, by the Atlantic Monthly.

An Open Letter to the Hon. Alfred E. Smith.

Sir: The American people take pride in viewing the progress of an American citizen from the humble estate in which his life began to the highest office within the gift of the nation. It is for this reason that your candidacy for the presidential nomination has stirred the enthusiasm of a great body of your fellow citizens. They know and rejoice in the hardship and the struggle which have fashioned you as a leader of men. They know your fidelity to the morality you have advocated in public and private life and to the religion you have revered; your great record of public trusts successfully and honestly discharged; your spirit of fair play and justice even to your political opponents. Their partisanship bids fair to quail before the challenge of your personality, and men who vote habitually against your party are pondering your candidacy with sincere respect and interest. Through all this tribulation there is a note of doubt, a sinister accent of interrogation, not as to intentional recalcitrance and moral purpose, but as to certain conceptions which your fellow citizens attribute to you as an editorial and conscientious Roman Catholic, which in their minds are irreconcilable with the Constitution, which, as President, you must support and defend, and with the principles of civil and religious liberty on which American institutions are based.

The Vital Question.
To this consideration of no word of yours, or on your behalf has yet been addressed. Its discussion is obviously necessary and yet strange reticence avoids it often with the unjust and withering attribution of bigotry or prejudice. Can it be a merely evasive motive of its introduction? Undoubtedly a large part of the public would gladly avoid a subject the discussion of which is so unappetizingly associated with rancor and malevolence, and yet to avoid the subject is to neglect the profoundest interests in our national welfare.

American life has developed into a variety of religious beliefs and ethical systems, religious and non-religious, whose claims press more and more upon public attention. None of these presents a more definite philosophy or makes a more positive demand upon the attention and reason of mankind than your venerable church, which recently at Chicago in the greatest religious demonstration that the world has ever seen, declared her presence and her power in American life. It is not the time ripe and the occasion opportune for a declaration. If it can be made, that shall clear away all doubt as to the reconcilability of her status and her claims with American constitutional principles. With such a statement the only question as to your proud eligibility to the presidential office would disappear and the doubts of your fellow citizens not of the Roman Catholic Church would be instantly resolved in your favor.

The conceptions to which we refer are not superficial. They are of the very life and being of that church, determining its status and its relation to the State, and to the great masses of men whose convictions deny them the privilege of membership in that church. Surely the more conscientious the Roman Catholic, and the more sincere and unqualified should be his acceptance of such conceptions.

Three conceptions have been recognized before by Roman Catholics as a potential obstacle to their participation in public office. Pope Leo XIII himself declaring, in one of his encyclical letters, that "it may in some places be true that for most urgent and just reasons it may be expedient for (Roman) Catholics to engage in public affairs or to take an active part in politics."

It is indeed true that a loyal and conscientious Roman Catholic could and would discharge his oath of office with absolute fidelity to his moral standards. As to that in general, and as to you in particular, your fellow citizens entertain no doubt. But those moral standards differ essentially from the moral standards of all men not Roman Catholics. They are derived from the basic political doctrine of the Roman Catholic Church, asserted against repeated challenges for 1500 years, that God has divided all power over men between the secular state and the church. Thus Pope Leo XIII, in 1885, in his encyclical letter on the Christian constitution of states, says: "The Almighty has appointed that charge of the human race between two powers, the ecclesiastical and the civil, the one being set over divine, and the other over human things."

Statement of Intolerance.
The deduction is inevitable that, as all power over human affairs, not given to the state by God, is given by God to the Roman Catholic Church, no other churches or religious or ethical societies have in theory any direct power from God and are without direct divine sanction, and therefore without natural right to function on the same basis as the Roman Catholic Church in religious and moral affairs of the State. The result is that that church, if true to her basic political doctrine, is necessarily committed to that intolerance that has disfigured so much of her history. This is frankly admitted by Roman Catholic authorities. Pope Pius IX in the famous Syllabus (1864) said: "To hold that national churches, withdrawn from the authority of the Roman pontiff and altogether separated, can be established, is error." That great compendium of Roman Catholic teaching, the Catholic encyclopedia, declares that the Roman Catholic Church "regards dogmatic intolerance, not alone as her incontestable right, but as her sacred duty." It is obvious that such convictions leave nothing in theory of the religious and moral rights of those who are not Roman Catholics. And, indeed, that is Roman Catholic teaching and the inevitable deduction from Roman Catholic claims. If we use the word "rights" strictly, other churches and other religious societies are tolerated in the State, not by right, but by favor.

Pope Leo XIII, is explicit on this point: "The (Roman Catholic) Church, indeed, deems it unlawful to place the various forms of divine worship on the same footing as the true religion, but does not, on that account, condemn those rulers who, for the sake of securing some great good or of hindering some great evil, allow patiently custom or usage to be a kind of sanction for each kind of religion having its place in the state."

That is, there is not a lawful equality of other religions with that of the Roman Catholic Church, but that church will allow state authorities for political reasons—that is, by favor, but not by right—to tolerate other religious societies. We would ask, sir, whether such favors can be accepted in place of rights by those owning the name freedom?

Pope Put Church Above State.

Furthermore, the doctrine of the two powers, in effect and theory, inevitably makes the Roman Catholic Church at time sovereign and paramount over the State? It is true that in theory the doctrine assigns to the secular State jurisdiction over secular matters and to the Roman Catholic Church jurisdiction over matters of faith and morals, each jurisdiction being exclusive of the other within undisputed lines. But the universal experience of mankind has demonstrated, and reason teaches, that many questions must arise between the State and the Roman Catholic Church in respect to which it is impossible to determine to the satisfaction of both in which jurisdiction the matter at issue lies.

Here arises the irrepressible conflict. Shall the State or the Roman Catholic Church determine? The Constitution of the United States clearly ordains that the State shall determine the question. The Roman Catholic Church demands for itself the sole right to determine it, and holds that within the limits of that claim it is superior to and supreme over the State. The Catholic Encyclopedia clearly so declares: "In case of direct contradiction making it impossible for both jurisdictions to be exercised, the jurisdiction of the church prevails and that of the State is excluded." And Pope Pius IX, in the Syllabus, asserted: "To say in the case of conflicting laws enacted by the two powers, the civil law prevails is error."

Supreme Court Opinion.

Extreme as such a conclusion may appear, it is inevitable Roman Catholic philosophy. That church, by the very theory of her existence, cannot yield because what she claims as her right and her truth she claims is hers by the "direct act of God." In her theory, God himself directly forbids. The State cannot yield because of a great mass of citizens who are not Roman Catholics. By its constitutional law and in the nature of things, practices of religion in its opinion inconsistent with its peace and safety are unlawful; the law of its being—the law necessity—forbids. It we could all concede the "divine and exclusive" claims of the Roman Catholic Church, conflict would be eliminated; but, as it is, there is a wide consensus of opinion that those claims are false in fact and in flat conflict with the very being and order of the State.

In our constitutional order this consensus is bulwarked on the doctrine of the Supreme Court of the United States that our religious liberty and our constitutional guarantees thereof are subject to the supreme qualification that religious "practices inconsistent with the peace and safety of the State shall not be justified." (Watson, v. Jones 13 Wall, p. 579.)

The Roman Catholic Church, of course, makes no claim, and never has made any claim, to jurisdiction over matters that in her opinion are solely secular and civil. She makes the claim obviously only when the matter in question is not, in her opinion, solely secular and civil. But as determination of jurisdiction, in a conflict with the State, rests solely in her sovereign discretion, no argument is needed to show that she may in theory and effect annihilate the rights of all who are not Roman Catholics, sweeping into the jurisdiction of a single religious society the most important interests of human well-being.

The education of youth, the institution of marriage, the international relations of the State, and its domestic peace, as we shall proceed to show, are, in certain exigencies, wrested from the jurisdiction of the State, in which all citizens share, and conferred to the jurisdiction of a single religious society in which all citizens cannot share, great numbers being excluded by the barriers of religious belief. Do you, sir, regard such claims as tolerable in a republic that calls itself free?

A Foreign Sovereignty.

And, in addition to all this, the exclusive powers of the Roman Catholic Church are claimed by her to be vested in and exercised by a sovereignty that is not only created thereby by the special act of God, but is foreign and extraterritorial to these United States and to all secular states. This sovereignty, by the highest Roman Catholic authority, that of Pope Leo XIII, is not only superior in theory to the sovereignty of the secular state, but is substituted upon earth in place of the authority of God Himself.

We quote Pope Leo in his Encyclical letter on the Christian Constitution of States: "Over the mighty multitude of mankind, God has set rulers with power to govern, and He has willed that one of them (the Pope) should be the head of all." We quote Pope Leo in his Encyclical letter on the Reunion of Christendom: "We who hold upon this earth the place of God Almighty."

It follows naturally on all this that there is a conflict between authoritative Roman Catholic claims on the one side and our constitutional law and principles on the other. Pope Leo XIII says: "It is not lawful for the state, any more than for the individual, either to disregard all religious duties or to hold in equal favor different kinds of religion." But the Constitution of the United States declares otherwise: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Thus, the Constitution declares the United States shall hold in equal favor different kinds of religion or no religion and the Pope declares it is not lawful to hold them in equal favor. Is there not here a quandary for that man who is at once a loyal churchman and a loyal citizen?

Pope Leo says the Roman Catholic Church "deems it unlawful to place the various forms of divine worship on the same footing as the true religion." But the Supreme Court of the United States says that our "law knows no heresy and is committed to the support of no dogma, the establishment of no sect." (Watson vs. Jones, 13 Wall, p. 578.)

Pope's View of America.

"Americans indulge themselves in the felicitation that they have achieved an ideal religious situation in the United States. But Pope Leo, in his encyclical letter on Catholicity in the United States, asserts: 'It would be very erroneous to draw the conclusion that in America is to be sought the type of the most desirable status of the church.' The modern world responds in the comfortable reflection that the severance of church and state has ended a long and unhappy conflict, when the Pope calls our attention to the error of supposing 'that it would be universally lawful or expedient for State and church to be as in America, disassociated and divorced.'"

Is our law, then, in papal theory, no law? Is it contrary to natural right? Is it in conflict with the will and fiat of Almighty God? Clearly the Supreme Court and Pope Leo are profoundly at variance. Is it not obvious that such a difference of opinion, concerning the fundamental rights between two sovereignties operating within the same territory, may even with the best intentions and the most sensitive consciences, be fruitful of political offenses that are odious among men?

Citizens who waver in your support would ask whether, as a Roman Catholic, you accept as authoritative the teaching of the Roman Catholic Church that in case of contradiction making it impossible for the jurisdiction of that church and the jurisdiction of the State to agree, the jurisdiction of the church shall prevail, whether, as a statesman, you accept the teaching of the Supreme Court of the United States that, in matters of religious practices which in the opinion of the State are inconsistent with its peace and safety, the jurisdiction of the State shall prevail; and, if you accept both teachings, how will you reconcile them.

III. The Church and the Schools.

At the present time no question assumes greater importance than the education of youth. The legislatures of Tennessee, of Oregon, and of Nebraska have of late a's impious hands upon it and the judiciary has sternly curbed them. From what has been said above, it is clear that the claims of the Roman Catholic Church touching this point, more than those of any other institution, may conflict with the authority of the State.

It is true that in the famous Oregon school cases the Supreme Court of the United States held a State law unconstitutional that forbade parents to educate their children at church schools of every denomination. But there was no section in the law that the church schools in question gave instruction inconsistent with the peace and safety of the State and there was no allegation of that tenor in the pleadings. On the record the church schools were void of offense. But had that feature existed in the cases, it would necessarily have led to a reversal of the decision. There would have been a conflict between church and State as to whether the instruction was inconsistent with the peace and safety of the State. The Roman Catholic Church, if true to her doctrine and dogma, would have had to assert exclusive jurisdiction over the determination of self-preservation, would have had to assert exclusive jurisdiction. The conflict would have been irreconcilable. What would have been the results and what the test of a sincere and conscientious Roman Catholic in executive office or on the bench?

Nothing can be clearer to the American mind than that the plain political teaching of Pope Pius IX and of Pope Leo XIII, as set forth in their encyclical letters, is inconsistent with the peace and safety of the State.

THE scope of "Mercantile Service" is probably not realized by the majority of people in St. Louis. We are serving more than 110,000 patrons, which figure about equals one-eighth of the population of the city. When making this count a patron who did business with several departments was counted as one patron, and a business organization, no matter what its size and service requirements, was counted as one patron. Service in this proportion is the usual thing for a public utility, but not for a bank.

The Executor of your estate must, first of all, be honest. Granting that the one you choose will be, he must possess these additional necessary qualifications, among others:

- He must have unlimited time to give to your affairs.
- He must have more than a superficial knowledge of probate law.
- He must be a tax expert.
- He must be experienced in handling investments, estates, and trusts.
- He must not move away.
- He must not die while he is your executor.

In other words, the safe executor is the corporate executor, and not the individual. To be a safe executor the individual would have to be about a dozen men in one.

The flame of youth can create or destroy, and early training will make it a blast furnace of constructive energy, or else—a devastating fire. While a lot has been said on the subject, the problems of parents must still be solved by case and not by rule, but here's one rule that works in most cases:

Teach Them to Save Money

Not as a duty, but to get something they really want. Not just to be saving, but to pick up money wisdom. Youthful energy must have an outlet. Responsibility uses energy. Give them money responsibility.

The State within the meaning of the words as used by the Supreme Court of the United States is a legal fiction. That it is a legal fiction for the State to hold in favor different kinds of religious practices; that it is not universally true that the State and the Roman Catholic Church to be disassociated and divorced; that the various kinds of religion in theory have their place in the State, not by natural right, but by favor; that dogmatic intolerance is not the incontestable right of the Roman Catholic Church, but her asserted duty; that in the case of conflicting laws of the State and the Roman Catholic Church the law of that church shall prevail, and that propositions that would make a strange textbook for the instruction of American youth.

IV. Marborough Marriage Annulment.

A direct conflict between the Roman Catholic Church and the State arises on the institution of marriage, through the claim of that church that in theory in the case of all baptized persons the case of specific consent, Protestants and Roman Catholics alike, jurisdiction touching marriage is wrested from the State and appropriated to the Roman Catholic Church. It exercises reposing ultimately in the Pope. In Roman Catholic theory the civil contract over which the State claims jurisdiction merges in the religious sacrament of marriage, which is, as to baptized persons, exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Roman Catholic Church. Pope Pius IX in 1864, proclaimed in the famous Syllabus: "It is error to hold that the sacrament of marriage is only a something accessory to the contract and separate from it."

It would be generally conceded that the Roman Catholic Church and, indeed, any religious society has the natural right, in case of a question as to the validity of the marriage of a member, to determine as to whether that member may receive its sacramental ministrations and on what terms. Action by the church would, obviously, relate only to the religious incidents of the civil contract, and would leave untouched the civil jurisdiction which the State claims jurisdiction. But the doctrine expressed by Pope Pius IX and the nature of the claims of the church forbids such reasonable action. The church proceeds in disregard of the law and sovereignty of the State, and claims, at its discretion, the right to annul and destroy the bond of the civil contract. The practical result of such claims in the conflict of church and State appears in the light of the recent and notorious annulment of the Marborough marriage.

Summary of the Facts.

The essential facts are few. It was the case of a marriage between two Protestants solemnized within the sovereignty of the State of New York by ecclesiastics of the Episcopal Church, duly authorized in the matter by the commission of that sovereignty. The parties took up their residence within the sovereignty of England. Twenty-five years after the marriage, and after the birth of two children, the wife, disregarding the remedy of annulment that existed in the law of England and in the law of New York as well as in the Roman Catholic Church (and if she were entitled to it at all could have been had for the asking in either jurisdiction), sued the husband for divorce in the English courts on the grounds of his gross misconduct. The divorce was granted. After the divorce, both parties contracted civil marriages with other partners, religious marriages being difficult for them for obvious reasons. The wife's second marriage was contracted with a Roman Catholic. An annulment of the first marriage became manifestly desirable.

In the courts of New York and of England, several matters were raised. New York had solemnized the contract under the due and usual safeguards as to the freedom of the contracting parties, and, in her sovereign right, recognized the contract as valid.

England, at the request of the wife, had recognized the New York jurisdiction over it so as to have the civil decree of divorce upon it. The parties for 25 years had proceeded in a course of life based on the assumption that the marriage was valid, and the wife, by her own election under the advice of able counsel, had waived all claim to annulment and had sought divorce. In the jurisprudence of every civilized country the wife was estopped from claiming annulment by her own acts, by the lapse of time and by the conclusive presumptions of secular law established in the interest of social morality and the sanctity of contracts.

Says Rota Ignored State.

But the wife applied to the Roman Catholic authorities who granted the annulment upon the theory that she had been under duress and duress at the time of the marriage 21 years before and had not known in all that time that such force. If it existed, established the right in the Roman Catholic court to an annulment. Disregarding facts in the case which might cast upon the ingenueness of the ecclesiastical court of the Sacred Rota at Rome, we would point to the fact that in the proceedings before that court the sovereignty of New York State and of England, and all that they had done in the matter were ignored. The evidence at the time on the record of the English court and conclusively against the claims of the wife was not even produced. The decree was granted on an ex parte hearing, on the testimony of

Marlborough Marriage Annulment. A direct conflict between the Roman Catholic Church and the State arises on the institution of that church that in theory in the case of all baptized persons, quite irrespective of specific consent, Protestants and Roman Catholics alike, jurisdiction touching marriage is vested from the State and appropriated to the Roman Catholic Church, its exercise reposing ultimately in the Pope. In Roman Catholic theory the civil contract over which the State claims jurisdiction merges in the religious sacrament of marriage, which is, as to baptized persons, exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Roman Catholic Church. Pope Pius IX in 1864, proclaimed in the famous Syllabus: "It is error to hold that the sacrament of marriage is only a something accessory to the contract and separate from it."

It would be generally conceded that the Roman Catholic church, and, indeed, any religious society, has the natural right, in case of a question as to the validity of the marriage of a member, to determine as to whether that member may receive its sacramental ministrations and on what terms. Action by the church would, obviously, relate only to the religious incidents of the civil contract, and would leave untouched the civil contract over which the State claims jurisdiction. But the doctrine expressed by Pope Pius IX and the nature of the claims of the church forbids such reasonable action. The church proceeds in disregard of the law and sovereignty of the State, and claims, at its discretion, the right to annul and destroy the bond of the civil contract. The practical result of such claims in the conflict of church and State appears in the light of the recent and notorious annulment of the Marlborough marriage.

Summary of the Facts.

"The essential facts are few. It was the case of a marriage between two Protestants solemnized within the sovereignty of the State of New York by ecclesiastics of the Episcopal Church, duly authorized in the matter by the commission of that sovereignty. The parties took up their residence within the sovereignty of England. Twenty-five years after the marriage, and after the birth of two children, the wife, disregarding the remedy of annulment that existed in the law of England and in the law of New York as well as in the Roman Catholic Church (and if she were entitled to the aid of all that could have been had for the asking in either jurisdiction), sued the husband for divorce in the English courts on the grounds of his gross misconduct. The divorce was granted. After the divorce, both parties contracted civil marriages with new partners, religious marriages being difficult for them for obvious reasons. The wife's second marriage was contracted with a Roman Catholic. An annulment of the first marriage became manifestly desirable.

In the courts of New York and of England, several matters barred the way. New York had solemnized the contract under the due and usual safeguards as to the freedom of the contracting parties, and, in her sovereign right, recognized the contract as valid.

England, at the request of the wife, had recognized the New York contract as valid and had taken jurisdiction over it so as to base the civil decree of divorce upon it. The parties for 25 years had proceeded in a course of life based on the assumption that the marriage was valid, and the wife, by her own selection under the advice of able counsel, had waived all claim to annulment and had sought divorce. In the jurisprudence of every civilized country the wife was estopped from claiming annulment by her own acts, by the lapse of time and by the conclusive presumptions of secular law established in the interest of social morality and the security of contracts.

Says Rota Ignored State.

But the wife applied to the Roman Catholic authorities who granted the annulment upon the theory that she had been under force and duress at the time of the marriage 31 years before and had not known in all that time that she was married. If it existed, established her right in the Roman Catholic court to an annulment. Disregarding the facts in the case, which might reflect upon the ingenuities of the ecclesiastical court of the Sacred See at Rome, we would point out to the fact that in the sovereignty of New York State and at England, and all that they had done in the matter were ignored. The evidence at the time on the record of the English court and conclusively against the claims of the wife was not even produced. The decree was granted on an ex parte hearing, on the testimony of interested witnesses only. It would be difficult to find a more utter disregard of the sovereignty of states than this by the sovereignty of Rome, touching that comity which, in good morals and public decency, is supposed to exist between sovereign powers.

In your opinion, sir, are such proceedings consistent with the peace and safety of states?

Conflict in Mexico.

The Mexican situation has brought the claims of the Roman Catholic Church into great prominence in this country. It is inevitably linked with issues that will concern the executive office at Washington for the next term. We have been very fully advised of the claims of the church in the matter through the official opinion of that eminent jurist and Roman Catholic, Mr. William D. Guthrie of the American bar, prepared at the request of the Roman Catholic hierarchy of America and extensively circulated.

Mr. Guthrie challenges the right of Mexico to enact into her Constitution the provision that "the Mexican law recognizes no jurisdiction (that is, juristic) personality in the religious institutions known as churches."

It must be borne in mind that this provision is not a statutory enactment of administrative law under a Constitution—it is a part of the Constitution itself, the organic law legally adopted by the political sovereignty of the Mexican people, absolute and supreme in creating their constitutional conditions. The opinion claims that this provision violates international law, the principles of liberty and justice of the civilized world and of American constitutional law. If the opinion is right then a political sovereignty, convinced that its existence is best served by the constitutional elimination of churches as juristic personalities, cannot lawfully proceed so to decree in its Constitution.

Further, Mr. Guthrie maintains: "The Roman Catholic Church is not opposing the separation of church and state in Mexico, provided that such separation be not a sham or screen, and will leave the church free to teach the Gospel, to educate children and inculcate sound and true spiritual doctrine, without dictation from or supervision by Government officials, and subject to reasonable police regulation."

Suicide for the State.

The opinion proceeds upon the theory that the Roman Catholic Church should determine, in case of conflict with Mexican sovereignty, what are "sound and true spiritual doctrine and moral rules of conduct." The political teachings of Pope Leo XIII, or the Syllabus of Pope Pius IX, would be regarded as sound and true by the Roman Catholic church, but it would be in reason be regarded as suicide by the autonomous Mexican State—or any other state.

Mr. Guthrie enthusiastically quotes Lord Acton: "Where ecclesiastical authority is restricted, religious liberty is denied." And he invokes public opinion in the United States and international opinion generally, in a protest against the Mexican constitutional and legal situation, because, he says, it is "in clear conflict with the basic doctrine of the Roman Catholic Church, and the deep belief of her members, that she is ecumenical and universal in the very sense of scope of the belief that all people ought to worship God, and that their church (the Roman Catholic Church) was founded by Christ, true God and true Man, for the governance of all men living under the skies."

Theory of the Two Powers.

The claim here asserted for the Roman Catholic Church is exclusive of every other religious foundation as having any spiritual rights under the Savior of mankind; and it is bluntly asserted in a word that connotes a sovereign jurisdiction in theory over all men in spiritual affairs without regard to their assent. It is the last official promulgation of the ancient and dangerous theory of the two Powers.

Americans, as well as other peoples, may deplore the Mexican standard of what is inconsistent with the peace and order of the state; but we submit that the application of the Mexican standard by the Mexican people in Mexican affairs, in the assertion of an undisputed national sovereignty within its own territory and over its own people, cannot be held contrary to reason, and null and void in law, however, much it may impugn the sovereign claims of the Roman Catholic church, afford a minority a reason for rebellion or offend the sentiments of other nations.

Mr. Guthrie's appeal opens up international questions of a grave character. He assures us that the problem of dealing with the Mexican situation "is extremely delicate and complex"; that the Mexicans are "resentful of foreign advice or interference, especially on our part"; that "our treatment at times has inflamed a sensitive and proud people to intense indignation"—and so forth.

How serious might be the crisis, if Mr. Guthrie's premises were to be accepted by the people of the United States, is seen in his declaration that "many historical precedents of action on the part of the Government of the United States of America, as well as of other countries, could be cited which would abundantly support a protest or remonstrance, and even armed intervention, at the present time in Mexico, in order to assure to the Mexican people religious liberty."

Armed Intervention.

Armed intervention—and, Mr. Guthrie goes on to explain, the Papacy and the Mexican hierarchy refrain from asking for it, not because it is unlawful and unreasonable, but because "history admonishes them of the horrors of civil war and of the danger of inviting interference by foreign Powers and arms to compel what the aggressors conceive to be either religious liberty or the only true faith." It is clear that Washington is saved an international episode only out of considerations of expediency and policy by the Papacy and the Mexican hierarchy.

"To this society (the Roman Catholic Church)," wrote Pope Leo XIII in his encyclical letter on the Christian Constitution of States, "the only begotten son of God entrusted all the truths which he had taught in order that it might keep and guard them and with lawful authority explain them." At the same time he commanded all nations to hear the voice of the (Roman Catholic) church as if it were his own, threatening those who would not hear it with everlasting perdition.

It is the voice of that church that speaks to America by the American hierarchy in the words of its distinguished counsel in the Mexican situation, and your fellow-citizens are concerned to inquire what authority you ascribe to that voice.

We have no desire to impute to the Roman Catholic Church aught but high and sincere motives in the assertion of her claims as one church and state in Mexico, provided that such claims, and so believing, it is their conscientious duty to stand for them. We are satisfied if they will but concede that those claims, unless modified and historically redressed, precipitate an inevitable conflict between the Roman Catholic Church and the American State irreconcilable with domestic peace. With two illustrations—and those relating to Christian Christianity—we have done.

Deposed Queen Elizabeth.

In the sixteenth century the decree of Pope Pius V. in terms deposed Elizabeth, Queen of England, from the English throne, and absolved her subjects from their allegiance. The result is well known. Much that pertained to the venerable forms of religion in the preceding centuries became associated in the popular mind of Europe with the reign of the Roman form. Roman Catholics were oppressed in their rights and privileges. Roman Catholic priests were forbidden within the realm.

The mills of God turned slowly, but they turned. The Roman Catholics of England endured the penalties of hostile legislation with heroic fortitude and resignation. Public opinion slowly and gradually, and gradually, Roman Catholic disabilities were removed, and in 1850, under Cardinal Wiseman, the Roman Catholic hierarchy was restored in England, with no other condition than that its ecclesiastical hierarchy should not use the ancient titles that the hierarchy of the Church of England had retained. Peace and amity reigned within the realm irrespective of different religious and domestic repose marked the happy epoch. But the toleration and magnanimity of England bore strange fruit. Scarcely was the Roman hierarchy restored to its ancient privileges when the apostolic letter of Pope Leo XIII appeared (1896), declaring to the world that the orders of the Church of England were void, her priests not priests, her Bishops not Bishops and her sacraments so many empty forms.

Beatification of Felton.

But this was not all. Reaching hands back through three centuries, the Roman Pontiff drew from obscurity the case of John Felton, an English citizen who in 1570, contrary to the law of treason at that time on the statute book of England, posted on the walls of London the decree of Pope Pius V., already referred to, deposing the English Queen. Felton was beatified in 1886 by the act of Pope Leo XIII.

The honors paid him were rendered 160 years after his treasonable act. There lies their sinister import. They are no part of the medieval milieu. They belong to the modern world and must have its seeds and standards. One would have supposed, in view of the critical situation in modern states in relation to the respect for authority of government and the obedience of citizens to the law, that the beatification might have been omitted. One would have supposed that the changes in political thought and theory through 300 years would have dictated the wisdom of letting the dead past bury its dead, and the memory of blessed John Felton rest in peace with those abandoned political doctrines that inspired his heroic but unhappy deed.

Is the record of the Roman Catholic Church in England consistent, sir, in your opinion with the peace and safety of the State?

Nothing will be of greater satisfaction to those of your fellow-citizens who hesitate in their endorsement of your candidacy because of the religious issues involved than such a disclaimer by

"I never felt me so weak and run-down that after finishing my run I was fagged out, nervous, my head throbbing. Only will power kept me on the job," says Mr. Mellick. "My digestion was so bad that food soured and formed gas on my stomach. I had lost my driving power. However Tania relieved all malarial troubles, gave me energy and put my stomach in good shape. I never felt better. Tania banished all ailments."

Parents Say Milk's Emulsion Gave Real Relief. Gaining Weight and Strength.

"Our 15-year-old boy hadn't been strong since he was 9 years old, when he had whooping cough and scarlet fever. He had constipation terribly. The only thing that would give relief was injections of warm water, and finally we used olive oil injections."

Last August we started giving him Milk's Emulsion. After taking three bottles, he hasn't to this day had to have another injection. He goes to school every day, eats his Emulsion right along, and is gaining weight and doing fine. We can't praise Milk's Emulsion enough, and will be glad to tell other parents just what it has done for our boy."—Mr. and Mrs. Jim Williams, Route 3, Kellerton, Iowa.

Milk's Emulsion restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food, thus building flesh and strength, which are Nature's only aids in conquering germs and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Wonderful for weak, sickly children. No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milk's Emulsion. If not satisfied with results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. KIDNAPERS HOLD TWO
PRISONERS FOR RANSOM

Chicago Band Said to Have Demanded $100,000 to $200,000 for Cabaret Owners.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, April 18.—A band of professional abductors, which has been operating in Chicago and Detroit for a year, is thought by Chicago newspapers to be involved in the mysterious disappearance of Jake Adler and Frank Galelli, wealthy owners of the Midnight Frolics, a South Side cabaret.

The two men, with the chauffeur, Tony Albino, vanished early Thursday, while they were driving home. As is usual under the code of gangland, no authentic word of the disappearance reached the police, although the authorities took cognizance of the case following rumors the men were held for ransom which underworld accounts placed at $100,000 to $200,000. Friends of the cabaret men, according to the same accounts, were negotiating with the reputed kidnapers, and were ready to pay $100,000 in cash for the prisoners. The abductors are reported headed by a former hanger-on of a North Side gang of hoodlums and liquor runners. Up to the present time victims of the band had been wealthy men of the underworld—almost always gamblers. It was determined by detectives that the same band kidnaped Clarence Lazarus, former South Side gambler, and held him three days, when his friends bought his release, although Lazarus' relatives said he had suffered an attack of amnesia. Another kidnapping laid to the band, according to a newspaper account, was that of Harry "Hickory Slim" Belford, threatened with death until his relatives paid $50,000.

The same men are said to have kidnaped Meyer "Fish" Blumfield, in Detroit less than a month ago. Friends obtained his release by paying $7000 and promising to deliver $18,000 more a day later, but when an attempt was made to collect the money, the gangsters were met by machine gun fire that killed two of the kidnapers and wounded another.

An unnamed informant was quoted as having this to say of his own experience, "they grabbed me close to my home. They always catch their prey near his home. After a couple of days of imprisonment, always blindfolded, I was to write a note to some friend and arrange with him to pay for my freedom. I was to emphasize that any attempt to communicate with the police or to practice any deception would mean my instant death. I wrote the note as bidden. My friend obtained the money demanded."

FINES FOR RUMOR SPREADERS

By the Associated Press.
LISBON, Portugal, April 18.—Measures to insure suppression of reports such as have been spread recently "in an attempt to disturb the peace of the country" were discussed at an extraordinary ministerial council today. Under measures proposed persons spreading false reports or distributing subversive propaganda would be subject to summary judgment and heavy fines.

Rumors that all was not well within the Portuguese Government prompted the authorities to issue an official statement Saturday saying that absolute solidarity existed among the members of the Government for the maintenance of order, and that the republic had the unconditional support of the army.

ZINC INSTITUTE OPENS ANNUAL CONVENTION

Chamber of Commerce Luncheon Wednesday Will Follow Two-Day Session.

The American Zinc Institute opened its ninth annual convention today at Hotel Statler with delegates representing zinc, copper, lead and allied industries in attendance. The convention will close tomorrow afternoon and on Wednesday the Chamber of Commerce will observe American Zinc Institute day with a luncheon to officers of the institute who will remain over. Speakers on today's program were Adolph Boldt, St. Louis representative, United States Chamber of Commerce, on "Solidarity in Industry"; Otto Ruhl, Joplin, "A Survey of the Tri-State or Joplin District"; John O. Crover, Miami, Ok., "Mining Economics"; E. M. Johnson, Henryetta, Ok., "Smelting of Zinc"; and Capt. James A. Stader, "Research."

To Elect Officers. The institute's annual dinner will be held this evening with Dr. John L. Davis of New York, as speaker. New officers and directors will be elected tomorrow. Richard Jenkins of Picher, Ok., will speak on "Transmutation in the Tri-State District"; C. L. Patterson, Pittsburgh, Pa., "The Outlook for Zinc-Coated Products"; Richard V. Ageston, Miami, Ok., "Welfare and Safety Work"; and Dr. Dorsey A. Lyons, chief metallurgist, United States Bureau of Mines, "Mining and Metallurgical Improvements."

The convention is the eighth to be held in St. Louis which is considered a strategic point in the industry, inasmuch as half the output of the tri-state or Joplin district passes through this gateway. It has been estimated that that district ships out $50,000,000 worth of zinc ore, $50,000,000 worth of lead, and $15,000,000 worth of steel each year, producing more than two-thirds of the zinc ore used in the United States.

STENCH BOMB ATTACKS ON THREE MORE DYEING PLANTS

Places Attacked Have Refused to Sign Agreement With New Organized Union of Employees.

Three dyeing and cleaning establishments that have failed to recognize the recently organized Cleaners, Dyers & Pressers' Union were the objects of stench bomb attacks early yesterday at a time when policemen, who have been guarding cleaning establishments since the beginning of the difficulty between employers and the union, were changing shifts.

The places attacked were the Mark Dodson Dyeing & Cleaning Co., 588 Delmar boulevard, where a stench bomb thrown through a plate glass window caused damage of $90; the Peters Dyeing & Cleaning Co., 4106 West Florissant avenue, $30 damage due to the breaking of a window by a hurled stench bomb; and a branch office of the Lungstrass Dyeing & Cleaning Co., 5305 Pershing avenue, where a thrown bomb missed its mark and broke on the sidewalk. The attack on the Peters company was the second since the trouble began.

Following a report by witnesses that the bomb thrown through the window at the Dodson company was hurled from a Studebaker automobile occupied by several men, police arrested three suspects, who are being questioned. The attacks occurred between 6 and 8 a. m., when policemen guarding the establishments were en route to or from relief corners.

INDUSTRY ECLIPSES RELIGION, ITS CHIEFS TELL PREACHERS

Manufacturers Say Professions and Nonindustrial Pursuits Are Not Keeping Pace.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, April 18.—Industry has eclipsed the progress achieved by any of the professions or nonindustrial pursuits, the National Association of Manufacturers said today.

Politics, religion, morals and education have not kept pace with the success of industry, the association says in its reply to the recent appeal of 41 Southern Baptists and ministers asking industrial leaders of the South to improve labor conditions.

"If the same degree of progress in the reformation of our political, religious, moral and educational lives had been made as has been made in our industrial life," the association states, "America would have very much less to worry about."

The statement, written by John E. Edgerton, president of the association and president of the Tennessee Manufacturing Association and the Lebanon Woolen Mills at Lebanon, Tenn., continues: "It is probably true that the average preacher, teacher and social worker knows as little about the practical operations of economic law as the average industrialist knows about the operations of spiritual law."

Laymen and Women Lead Chants and Ceremonies.

MEXICO CITY, April 18.—Mexico's first Easter Sunday with the Catholic Churches lacking priests passed, as has all of Holy Week, with a normal, but not an extraordinary number of worshippers in attendance. Laymen and women led the chants and carried out some of the prescribed religious ceremonies. The shrine of the Virgin of Guadalupe was visited by large crowds, but not in such numbers as on other Easter days, or on those days last summer preceding the going into effect of the Government's new religious regulations, in protest against which the episcopate withdrew the priests from the churches.

SONG HITS OF PAST 10 YEARS THROUGH KSD

Eveready Hour Next Tuesday Evening to Bring Popular Songs of Past Decade.

The Eveready Hour next Tuesday evening will feature song hits of the past decade, rendered by the Eveready Orchestra and the artists of the group, Barbara Maurer, Virginia Rea, and the Eveready Revellers.

This music lies in the period just before the entry of radio as an entertainment medium, the period when numerous musical comedies were outstandingly successful, largely because of the merit of the songs. Music critics have pointed out that that era has been sup-

HOW THEY GROW ON THOSE

New method rejuvenates

Proves 97% of falling unnecessary—new hair

MODERN scientific research has recently disproved many favored, old theories on hair growing. That new hair can actually be grown almost 70% of the time is the astonishing pronouncement today of numerous men of science. Thoroughly new and revolutionary discoveries have been made. A method discovered which does what old-day science considered largely impossible. This method was tried out, during the last three years, in something over 200,000 cases, and records of results carefully kept. 70 times in 100 according to those records, results were successful.

It is called the Van Ess Liquid Scalp Massage. You use it at home—a few quick rubs over the scalp, night or morning—that is all. It is different from any other hair method known. It is protected by U.S. patents. It does what no other method does or has ever done. That is, it massages tremendous active root-rejuvenating and germ-combating elements DIRECTLY TO THE ROOTS.

SONG HITS OF PAST 10 YEARS THROUGH KSD

Everyday Hour Next Tuesday Evening to Bring Popular Songs of Past Decade.

The Eveready Hour next Tuesday evening will feature song hits of the past decade, rendered by the Eveready Orchestra and the artists of the group, Barbara Maurel, Virginia Rea, and the Eveready Revue.

This music lies in the period just before the entry of radio as an entertainment medium, the period when numerous musical comedies were outstandingly successful, largely because of the merit of the songs. Music critics have pointed out that that era has been sup-

HOW THEY GROW HAIR ON THOSE THIN SPOTS

New method rejuvenates dormant hair roots

Proves 91% of falling hair and baldness largely unnecessary—new head of hair now in 90 days

MODERN scientific research has recently disproved many favored old theories on hair growth. That new hair can actually be grown almost 70% of the time is the astonishing pronouncement today of numerous men of science.

Thoroughly new and revolutionary discoveries have been made. A method discovered which does what old-fashioned science considered largely impossible. This method was tried out, during the last three years, in something over 200,000 cases, and records of results carefully kept. 70 times in 100, according to those records, results were successful.

Results guaranteed in writing. It is called the Van Ess Liquid Scalp Massage. You use it at home—a few quick rubs over the scalp night or morning—that is all. It is different from any other home method known. It is protected by U. S. patents. It does what no other method does or has ever done. That is, it massages tremendous active root-rejuvenating and germ-combating elements DIRECTLY TO THE ROOTS.

OF THE HAIR. It works on the surface of the scalp, combating infection, the sebum that causes most falling hair and baldness, and UNDER THE SURFACE which acts to revive dormant hair roots—the roots men of science used to consider beyond recall.

Thus it stops falling hair completely in most cases. It stimulates the roots to grow new hair. It grows new hair. Scores of thousands of recorded results prove its power beyond question.

To avoid skepticism and doubt, the Van Ess treatment is sold under absolute, written guarantee. It is warranted to grow new hair in 90 days, no matter what the present condition of your scalp, and to stop falling hair—or it costs you nothing. The dealer from whom you obtain it, supplies the guarantee with the treatment.

Where obtainable at all drug stores. Simply ask for "Van Ess Liquid Scalp Massage." Get the 90-day treatment, written guarantee. Or obtain single 30-day bottles to try.

Feel Tired and Languid?

To Be Fit There Must Be Good Elimination of the Blood Impurities

ALWAYS tired, lame and achy? Sure your kidneys are working right? When the kidneys act sluggishly waste impurities are apt to remain in the blood and cause many unpleasant symptoms. One feels dull and languid with sometimes nagging backache, drowsy headaches and sensations of dizziness.

If your kidneys are sluggish, help them with a diuretic. Use Doan's Pills. They are praised the world over. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. C. A. Curry, Graduate Nurse, 802 Maple St., Lehigh, Ill., says: "My kidneys were sluggish. My back ached and I had dizzy sensations. Doan's Pills proved effective and I continued their use until I was a well man again. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Pills."

Frank Marks, 530 E. Chestnut St., Wauson, Ohio, says: "My kidneys were sluggish. My back ached and I had dizzy sensations. Doan's Pills proved effective and I continued their use until I was a well man again. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Pills."

Describes the Flannery Fall. He outlined the purpose of his recently formed Flannery Fall. At the May election of the Free State to elect a majority of representatives who would refuse to take the oath of allegiance to the English crown, remarking, "We're not concerned with what's in the English statute book. We are concerned in seeing that it's not enforced. We are

DESIRE OF IRISH IS FOR SELF RULE, SAYS DE VALERA

Addresses St. Louis Branch of Association for Recognition of Republic, at Sheldon Memorial.

An oppressed people, purses bled and spirits galled by subjection to a race to whom every Irishman believes himself superior, was pictured by Eamon de Valera, champion of Irish freedom, in an address last night at Sheldon Memorial, under auspices of the American Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic.

A united Ireland, "neither a bullock-farm for England nor a tourist-farm for foreigners," with "on Irish soil as many Irish families as can live there comfortably," the Irish nation for the Irish people and the right, without interference from outside, to govern ourselves as we think best, with Ireland the only factor considered—these he sketched as what the Irish people want.

Objects to Term "Extremists." "We are not extremists," he protested. "I think the proper title for Irish Republicans is 'The Moderates.' The real extremists are those who are not satisfied with being free to govern themselves, but want to govern other countries as well, to keep India as a subject nation, to go into and exploit China. The British imperialist is the true extremist."

What if Ireland got all it wanted? "First, we could have one government," De Valera said. "We would realize that we are not an imperial power; that we would not have the tribute of India coming to us, and we would economize in government."

Calls Englishmen "Foreigners." He referred to Englishmen as "foreigners." His manner was that of the agitator, but of the student. He dealt far less in local color than the "professional Irishman" common in this country, along with the professional kilt-wearer, southern or New Englander. But he kept up the tradition of Irish wit. A steady current of irony ran through his address, and he did not label his jokes.

On the other hand, his audience was as ready to applaud a quiet flash of humor as a quiet thrust at England, and it had many of both to applaud. It was not as large an audience as the one which filled the arena and balcony of the Coliseum nearly eight years ago, when he spoke here, though it filled the Memorial. Young faces were rare. Probably most of them whose eyes never wavered from De Valera's gaunt, scholarly face carried their own memories of the Isle.

Says Ireland Doesn't Prosper. "Do not believe that Ireland prospers," he said. "When a distinguished visitor returns and tells you that, it is obvious that he has been the guest of the gentleman who gets $50,000 a year, or one of the two Prime Ministers who together make more than the Prime Minister of England."

He had described Ireland as overrun with overpaid "representatives of a foreign power" and bled to pay them, spending proportionately more for "an armed force to deny Irish freedom" than England spent for defense; supporting a police force "absurdly large because of inevitable disrespect for an imposed constitution," and paying England in taxes "a far greater part of Irish revenue than, in proportion, England is paying the United States for its war debt."

"You know how England has called you ungrateful for trying to collect any part of that war debt," he remarked. "Even then England is only passing on to you what it takes from Germany. We've no one to take it from to pay England. Such taxation would impoverish any nation."

Large Armed Force Inevitable. "There is no excuse for such an army in Ireland. There are no trade routes in Ireland for it to protect. No other power but England has tried to interfere with Irish liberty for 700 years. Is the army there to defend Ireland against that power? It would have to get its ammunition from England. The English are generous in giving guns to Irishmen to shoot each other down with, but do you think they would give them to be used against Englishmen?"

Contrary to the St. Patrick's Day optimism of President Coghane of the Free State De Valera cited that Irish imports and exports had decreased to a fourth of what they were when he was in St. Louis in 1919, with a trade balance increasingly "in the red;" bank deposits had fallen off $200,000,000,000 and 280,000 persons had fled from Irish poverty. He quoted the diagnosis of Ireland by a famous Englishman, John Stuart Mill. "Whenever you see the people of a country leaving it en masse because the Government of that country does not allow them means to live, by that fact alone the Government is condemned."

Describes the Flannery Fall. He outlined the purpose of his recently formed Flannery Fall. At the May election of the Free State to elect a majority of representatives who would refuse to take the oath of allegiance to the English crown, remarking, "We're not concerned with what's in the English statute book. We are concerned in seeing that it's not enforced. We are

BOSTON LABOR REQUESTS STAY FOR SACCO AND VANZETTI

Central Union Suggests Governor Name Commission to Investigate Entire Case.

BOSTON, April 18.—The Central Labor Union of Boston passed a resolution yesterday asking Gov. Alvan T. Fuller to stay the execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted murderers, sentenced to electrocution the week of July 10, and appoint a special commission to investigate the entire case of the internationally known radicals.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, April 18.—A protest against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti, radicals convicted of murder in Massachusetts, was made by the Chicago Federation of Labor here yesterday. Fuller with a copy to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

By the Associated Press. LEICESTER, England, April 18.—The Independent Labor party conference decided today to send a message to the Governor of Massachusetts demanding the release of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, who are under sentence of death for murder in that State.

By the Associated Press. FORT SMITH, Ark., April 18.—Three members of the family of Carl Burcham were killed and another injured in a tornado which struck at Bokoshe, Ok., 25 miles southeast of Fort Smith, today.

Burcham, his wife and an infant were crushed to death and W. C. Burcham, a son, injured when the home was blown down. The injured boy was brought to this hospital here. His skull is fractured and he may die. Arkoma, Ok., two and a half miles southwest of Fort Smith, also felt the storm. Several houses were damaged, but no one was injured.

THREE KILLED IN FAMILY ROW

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 18.—Three persons were shot and killed last night and another was seriously wounded as a result of what police said was a quarrel between two families. The dead: Angelo Diana, 30 years old; Mary Diana, 45, his wife, and Camillo Schifano, Samuel Diana, 17-year-old son of the slain couple, was wounded.

Three arrests were made by police in connection with the shooting. They took into custody Mr. and Mrs. Frank Muccicco, in whose home the shooting occurred, and Joe Pino.

telling our people, 'You are free. Act like it.'

A hundred crowded to the platform to shake De Valera's hand, and another hundred lined the aisle as he walked out, a policeman at his elbow. Outside another throng, waiting while he shook hands with the blue-coated guard, cheered and waved hats. He drove away to board a train for Chicago for another address. He is to appear in New York as a witness for the defense in the Free State's suit to get $25,000,000 funds loaned the Irish Republic by its friends in this country.

DYNAMITE IN OVERTURNED AUTO FAILS TO EXPLODE

Two Cuckoo Gangsters Injured When Car Rolls Down 60-foot Bank Near Herculaneum, Mo.

Two Cuckoo gangsters and 150 pounds of stolen stick dynamite were in an automobile which skidded from the pavement on State Highway No. 61, four miles north of Herculaneum, and rolled down a 60-foot embankment early yesterday.

The dynamite did not explode, but the gangsters—Jim Downey, 21 years old, who gave his address as 2102 Wyoming street, and George Faheen, 20, of 804 South Fourth street—were seriously hurt when they fell out of the car. Downey, who has been arrested 28 times for investigation and is now under bond on a robbery charge, suffered internal injuries and fractured ribs; Faheen, who has been arrested 23 times as a suspect, suffered skull fracture. They were brought to the City Hospital by an auto dealer of Herculaneum.

Sacrifices of Food and Ease Necessary If the Slimness of Youth Is Desired

Expert Tells What Must Be Foregone
by the Person Who Would Rid Himself of Superfluous Weight.

Control Your Weight!

THIS is the tenth of a series of articles on "Control Your Weight," written by members of the Adult Weight Conference, called by officers of the American Medical Association. The papers are prepared with the editorial co-operation of the American Medical Association. Next Monday, Flora Rose of Cornell University will discuss "Dieting to Gain Weight."

By FLORA ROSE,
Director of New York State College of Home Economics, Cornell University.

THERE was a time when to describe a woman as "fair, fat and forty" was to pay her a real compliment. Styles have changed, however, and women—and men too—for that matter—are besieging doctors and dietitians to give them doses which will make and keep them thin. This modern interest in being thin might well give reason for ridicule if it were entirely based on the dictates of Dame Fashion.

On the contrary, it has its good points. All the evidence in the case seems to indicate that adults who are able to keep themselves reasonably slim have better chances for health, for efficiency and for prolonged life than their fat friends. If the adult is to err on the side of either fatness or thinness, then thinness should be favored.

But not all of the overweight adults of our acquaintance are able to control their overweight. In spite of exercise and of reasonable diet control they persist in being fat. What needs to be recognized in these cases is that the excessive weight may be a symptom of some faulty behavior on the part of the body, and that while such persons should reduce in the interests of their own safety, the reducing should be done under the direction of a doctor who understands this condition and can supervise it. This type of overweight problem is proving to be more common than we have believed and is found in children as well as in adults. As such cases are medical cases, we herewith disclaim them from our consideration. Our legitimate problem is that surprisingly large number of adults who are overweight because their day's program includes too much food, or too little exercise, or both.

Body's Fuel Needs.
The human body is a machine needing fuel to run it and to enable it to work. The harder it runs and the more work it does, the more fuel it needs. If, therefore, instead of walking, or riding around in automobiles, if we earn our daily bread by indoor jobs that keep us sitting or standing around, or if, lacking a job, we just play around with cards and parties and do not make up for it by getting vigorous exercise of some kind, we shall have decidedly limited our fuel needs.

Then if, on the other hand, meal after meal, day after day, we consistently eat more fuel food than we spend in the day's activities, the body thrives "banks" this excess as fat. We awaken one day to the uncomfortable facts of tightening waist bands and scales which tell unpleasant truths.

If any of us belongs in this class of overweight, and we want to reduce, we must cut down on the day's food or increase the day's physical exertions; in other words, eat less and work more. There is no safe road to reducing, where one can both eat his cake and not keep it as added fat.

The substances in food which we rely upon chiefly are sugars, starches and fats. When we lead sedentary lives and at the same time desire to retain slim and youthful lines it behooves us to be cautious about treating ourselves too liberally to these foods in which considerable amounts of sugar, starch or fat are concentrated.

This means we may need to drink coffee without sugar, to look at candy but leave it to do with tea, or to go without it, to eat one slice of bread instead of two, and perhaps to spread that slice but lightly with butter.

We may need to choose less in place of cream and fruits in place of pastries and puddings. The meats we eat should be lean instead of fat, and our salads should be conspicuously free of the small amounts of dressing with which they are served. Milk will take the place of cream on the smaller serving of breakfast cereal we allow ourselves, and jam and tea parties and between-meal indulgences will have to be forewarned.

Necessary Foods.
In the meantime, while we are watching with wary eyes the content of our diets, at the same time we shall need to keep up the supply of foods which are necessary to build and repair tissues and to keep body functions regulated. Whether or not we live vigorous physical lives, or sedentary ones, whether we are fat or

To be described as "fair, fat and forty" used to be considered a real compliment.

2,500 Calorie Diet Number Three For Maintaining or Increasing Weight

A diet moderately low in milk, eggs and vegetables, but containing an abundance of fruits. Almost all of the grain products should be of the less highly milled type, so that there may be an abundance of iron in the diet. Very attractive meals may be planned on this liberal fruit diet.

What to Purchase
Milk, 2 cups daily.
Eggs, 4 a week.
Meat, 1-3 pound (1 medium serving) 6 days a week.
Fish, 1-3 pound (1 medium serving) once a week.
Potatoes, 1/2 pound (1 big potato) daily.
Green or leafy vegetables, 1-3 pound (1 large serving) 3 times a week.
Other succulent vegetables, 1-3 pound (1 large serving) 4 times a week.
Fruit, dried, 1 1/2 ounces (equivalent of 4 or 5 prunes) twice a week.
Fruit, fresh or canned, average serving (as 1 apple or 1 orange) 12 times a week.

Refined, 1/2 ounce (about 2 tablespoons before cooking) daily.
Unmilled, 1 ounce (1 medium serving) daily.
Graham or whole wheat bread, 6 ounces (6 slices 1/4-inch thick) daily.
Fat, 3 1/4 ounces (6 1/4 tablespoons) daily (includes butter).
Sugar, 2 ounces (4 tablespoons) daily.
Cod liver oil, 1/2 tablespoon daily.

Explanations
About 1 1/2 ounces of American cheese or 4 or 5 ounces cottage cheese may replace 1 cup of milk frequently if desired.
Meat fat may be omitted if reduction in calories is desired. Preferably salt water fish.
Use raw vegetables frequently.
Use oranges, grapefruit or tomatoes frequently.
To allow for flour used for thickening or in cakes or cookies.
Breakfast cereal, 1/2 slice graham or whole wheat bread may be substituted, if desired, but should not carry extra butter with it.
Includes bacon, fat used in cooking, thick cream, salad dressing, unless dressing is made with mineral oil.
Includes sugar in molasses, jelly, marmalade, desserts.
For lack of time spent in direct sunlight.

Theory and Practice

By Angelo Patri

Angelo Patri is just the principal of a New York grade school, but the late Charles W. Elliot, president of Harvard, said Patri is doing more for common-school education than any other person in America. This school, a model in every respect, is a mecca for teachers from all parts of the country.

JIMMIE studies his spelling list word by word. Then he asks some kindly soul to hear him spell them. Once having succeeded in spelling the list through without a mistake he slams the book shut and turns to the next lesson. He knows his spelling anyhow. Now for grammar.

There is a long rule in Italian that must be committed to memory so that Jimmie will know all about the possessive case. There are some exceptions too, but Jimmie gets them in line easily enough. Now he knows his grammar and is ready to be heard. "Fine," says mother. "Jimmie, you ought to get a good mark in grammar this month."

"I bet I don't. I never get a good mark in grammar. Nobody does."

"Why not? Don't you know it?" "Sure I know it but she never asks it so we get on examination day and so we get bad marks."

When Jimmie started for school next day he knew his lessons but the teacher didn't ask him to write the words in a list nor did she ask him to spell them out loud. She said something like this:

"Yesterday I explained the grammar rules. You studied them last night. Today everybody ought to be able to use the possessive case and the possessive sign correctly. The words I gave out for home study are to be used in a story. You see this outline calls for them and the use of the possessive case as well. You will be marked on the application of the lessons. Do your very best." And the anxious parent went scratching along the paper in search of the spelling list and the elusive possessives.

Jimmie got C. He was cross and the teacher didn't like it. "It's bad enough Jimmie, to get such poor marks. I wouldn't add it to by sulking."

"I'm not sulking," said Jimmie crossly. "I don't see how I get C when I know my lessons." "If you knew them you wouldn't get C," said the teacher tartly. "I'm not going to study any more," said Jimmie that night. "I study my head off and she gives me C."

There is a long step between

BEFORE NEW POTATO COMES

By Hannah Wing

ABOUT this time, the "old" potato is not as good as it once was and the new potatoes are too high for every day use. In the time that the potato, part of the menu, needs brightening up a bit. Without too much effort, the following recipes will give this result:

Grilling potatoes is a good trick, and this is how it is done. Slice cooked potatoes lengthwise, brush with melted butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper and broil over a flame.

Another potato dish that is a trouble-free one is the French or German fried potato. The potatoes are sliced thin, washed, parboiled in water, then drained and dry between towels. They are then fried in butter or oil, one-half hour in cold water, then drain and dry between towels. They are then fried in butter or oil, one-half hour in cold water, then drain and dry between towels.

Pittsburg potatoes are made in much the same way but have the added trouble of dipping and sprinkling with salt and pepper and baking in a casserole at 350 to 400 degrees Fahrenheit until brown. The extra deliciousness of each piece justifies the effort, however.

Spanish Potatoes

Two cups cold boiled potatoes, diced, 1/4 cup cold cooked ham, chopped, one tablespoon onion, two tablespoons chopped green pepper, two tablespoons chopped pimiento, four tablespoons fat, one teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon paprika.
Fry the onion, pepper and pimiento in the fat until light brown, add the diced potatoes, the chopped ham and seasonings and cook until thoroughly heated through.

The Diary of a New Father

SUNDAY NIGHT.

THIS morning I was having a wonderful sleep, and sleep is the most wonderful thing there is, but it is too bad you can not appreciate while you are having it. I was asleep for breakfast and woke up for breakfast and the thought of getting up without making me get up, and she pulled the covers off me and punched me in the ribs, because she says it is no use trying to get me out of bed with more words, although you could not really call them mere words.

Joan said, "Come on; get up," and before I could think of anything to say the doorbell rang and she put on her robe and went to answer it, and she was back in a minute and she said, "The Stewarts want us to go to church with them. Hurry and get up. It is a beautiful day out. I said, 'It is not you are not even up,' and I said, 'How can a day be beautiful when the Stewarts are up this early making trouble?'"

Well, the pastor's daughter stayed with the baby, and she charges 20 cents an hour and the sermon alone lasted an hour and fifteen minutes, and when we came home I thought, now maybe Joan will lay off me for the rest of the day, but a man is silly to have a hope like that because your wife can not let you alone for five minutes, let alone a whole day, and almost as soon as we came in the house she said, "Didn't Mr. Stewart look wonderful in his new suit and hat and everything this morning?"

I said, "None other than that guy I said, 'He is all right to me, when I can not see him.' Joan said, 'I wish you would pay as much attention to his appearance as he pays to his. That hat of yours is simply shabby, and you need another better suit, and those shoes you are wearing are disgraceful.'"

I said, "What is the matter with my hat?" and Joan said, "It probably is a very good hat, but it would have a new outfit. I am tired of being ashamed of you." I said, "I said, 'There is nothing wrong with this suit, either,' and Joan said, 'Now stop arguing. You can go right downtown tomorrow and buy a new outfit. I am tired of being ashamed of you.'"

"We can't afford it," Joan said. "Oh, we can too. You looked actually ragged beside Mr. Stewart. I said, 'I can stand almost anything except being compared to that guy,' and Joan said, 'Well, then, you certainly ought to dress as well as he does.'"

I said, "It is all in the clothes." Joan said, "Not all," and I said, "If I spent as much on clothes as he does three girls would turn around to look at me to every half-witted one that would look at him." Joan said, "Don't make me laugh," and I said, "What's more, I can prove it," and Joan said, "Ha, ha," like that, and now I have to go and show her, and how she ever talked me into it is over my head, and my credit is going to take a lot of patches while I dolly up like I was celebrating that guy Stewart's funeral, but maybe it will be worth it.

BEFORE NEW TATO COMES

By Hannah Wing.

ABOUT this time, the "old" potato is not as good as it once was and the new potatoes are high for every day use. Now, time that the potato, part menu, needs brightening up. Without too much extra effort, the following recipes will give you:

French Potatoes. Boil potatoes in a simple way and this is how it is done: Cooked potatoes lengthwise, with melted butter, sprinkling with salt and pepper and broil uniformly.

Other potato dish that is less than either French or German is the Chamberly potato. For this, wash, pare and slice potatoes thinly. Let them stand half hour in cold water, then dry and brush over with melted butter. Put the pan in the oven and at a moderate heat 350 degrees Fahrenheit until soft and well browned.

Spanish Potatoes. Boil potatoes in the same way but have the trouble of dipping each in melted butter or other fat, rolling with salt and paprika, baking in a casserole at 350 degrees Fahrenheit until done. The extra deliciousness of the piece justifies the effort, however.

Little Miss Malaprop

By Fay Stevenson

HER hostess had not invited enough men and Miss Malaprop found herself quite deserted in a corner of the conservatory. She had just about decided to go up to her room and when one of the gentlemen whom she had met when she first arrived, sank down wearily beside her.

They decided that most week-end affairs were pretty dull matters, discussed politics, poetry, art and new sport models in cars. Miss Malaprop's mood changed from sad to vivacious. The dance orchestra struck up a lively fox-trot. She was beginning to think that, after all, it was the man who sat at the house that marked society events as dull or interesting. Then, in gay mood, she said, "Oh, well, this isn't so bad. Hear that jazz. Let's not waste any more time. I'm wild to dance!"

The man stood up and bowed sedately. His mood had changed from that of comrade to that of a stranger.

"I'm sorry," he said, "but I'm engaged for this dance." The color flooded her face. She wanted to throw her fan at him. How horrid! She had asked a man to dance with her—taken the privilege of every gentleman to select his dance partner into her own hands. Would she ever learn the conventionalities that even the modern girl respected?

EASTERTIDE COSTUMES WORN BY ST. LOUIS MAIDS and MATRONS

Sketches by Phyllis Babette Stein.

Trend of Fashion as Indicated by Spring Frocks and Hats Pictured and Described by Special Artist and Writer.

BOIS DE ROSE. abnthe green, beige, cocoa, burnt orange will be among the leading colors for spring, judged by the costumes worn Easter Sunday by the socially prominent of St. Louis.

Felt hats with high crowns and narrow brims are very fashionable, but the spring and summer will also view the introduction of the picture hat, broad-brimmed and droopy.

Homespun kasha, silk, georgette, charmeuse, heavy crepe are the most favored materials for the coming season. The two-piece dress is more in vogue than ever before. Although fashion authorities predict the popularity of the short sleeve, the well-dressed woman of St. Louis is wearing her sleeves long. The short hem line is still considered very modish.

Chic simplicity is the keynote of the costume shown above, and worn by Mrs. Ernest Stix, 6470 Forsythe. The severity of the square neck is attractively broken by long pearls looped and caught with an oval clasp. The skirt is pleated. Both blouse and skirt are burnt orange. The navy blue sport coat is fashioned of rough tweed, wide cuffs and deep pockets; a red fox collar completes the coat.

Mrs. Stix is planning to spend the spring in France and Spain. Her daughter, Elizabeth, will take the summer course at Heidelberg. Mrs. Stix is a trustee of John Burroughs School, is on the board of Bryn Mawr College and is active in the League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Frederick D. Gardner, 4508 West Pine boulevard, wore a Harry Collins model of Alice blue crepe; an abnthe green tie formed the collar. A short cape hung from the shoulders and terminated in the middle of the back. Small buttons adorned the left side of the frock. Mrs. Gardner matched her jewelry to her costume by wearing abnthe green earrings and semilength pearls.

During the war and until 1921 Mrs. Gardner graciously presided over the Governor's mansion at Jefferson City. She is on the board of the Girls' Industrial Home, is active in local charities, and is known as a patroness of music and art.

Mrs. Frederick H. Riesmeyer of 4624 Pershing avenue was dressed in a modish two skirt and wrap to midnight blue charmeuse. She wore a white silk Vionnet blouse with a hemstitched neckline. Her wrap was scalloped at the cape and again at the hem. The pencil-blue hat formed the new fish tail back, and the bag and shoes were alligator skin, the gloves white charmeuse.

Mrs. Riesmeyer's pet occupation is the Decorative Art Shop, known among her friends as The Stables. It is an old barn in back of her home that has been converted artistically into charming nooks, quaint fireplaces, a winding wrought iron stairway. Here she displays prints, pottery, pewter, glassware and reproductions of antiques.

An imported ensemble of an indefinable shade of bois de rose formed the Easter costume of Mrs. E. D. Nims of 56 Portland place. The two-piece homespun dress was trimmed with bands of green, neutral gray, blue, tan, a deep rose and a deep blue. The skirt was the pleated skirt and again on the ties. The kasha coat was embroidered with fine threads of bois de rose. A chic dash of fade was added by the handkerchief and the round earrings and high crown felt hat. The French slippers were of modish snake skin.

Mrs. Nims is a sportswoman and has won a number of medals for fishing. She also is fond of hunting and is an expert rider.

Mrs. Harrison Hoblitzelle of 5092 Westminster place was gowned in a distinctive Vionnet frock and hat of bois de rose. A drape fell from the shoulder in front and beaded the hemline in back. Another drape formed the skirt and terminated in a V at the waist.

Mrs. Hoblitzelle before her marriage was Mary D. Jones. She is a member of the Junior League and was active during the past winter on the Smoke Abatement Committee.

Miss Louise Rumsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Rumsey of the Chase Hotel, wore a beige and cocoa combination of georgette. A fluting of the same material fell from the flower on her shoulder to a few inches below the skirt. The large hat was designed from beige straw and cocoa felt. The triangular earrings were multicolored gems set in carved gold. Miss Rumsey brought them from Cuba on one of her sojourns to the island. She is now studying voice and piano prior to her presentation to the social world next season.

Flowers for Spring

By Janet Winslow

FLOWERS are over everything this spring. They do not come in the form of a gown or hat, but they are dotted about in the most artistic manner, always managing to be used for an accent or in some way to make the costume a more beautiful whole.

It is wonderful what a tiny flower can do for style under the new regime.

And, even though they are so very prevalent in fashion, it is always a surprise to see how vividly they can be used, and to what good effect. As long as it is a bright little flower the rule seems to be to wear it wherever you think it will do your costume the greatest amount of good.

White flowers are so popular and in such good style that it is almost impossible to get them around town. White violets are at a premium.

The very freshest thing is a bunch of flowers on your hat worn low over one ear and then a bunch of the same sort of flower.

Miss Louise Rumsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Rumsey of the Chase Hotel, wore a beige and cocoa combination of georgette. A fluting of the same material fell from the flower on her shoulder to a few inches below the skirt. The large hat was designed from beige straw and cocoa felt. The triangular earrings were multicolored gems set in carved gold. Miss Rumsey brought them from Cuba on one of her sojourns to the island. She is now studying voice and piano prior to her presentation to the social world next season.

Mrs. Riesmeyer's pet occupation is the Decorative Art Shop, known among her friends as The Stables. It is an old barn in back of her home that has been converted artistically into charming nooks, quaint fireplaces, a winding wrought iron stairway. Here she displays prints, pottery, pewter, glassware and reproductions of antiques.

An imported ensemble of an indefinable shade of bois de rose formed the Easter costume of Mrs. E. D. Nims of 56 Portland place. The two-piece homespun dress was trimmed with bands of green, neutral gray, blue, tan, a deep rose and a deep blue. The skirt was the pleated skirt and again on the ties. The kasha coat was embroidered with fine threads of bois de rose. A chic dash of fade was added by the handkerchief and the round earrings and high crown felt hat. The French slippers were of modish snake skin.

THE RAGGED EDGE

A NEW STORY OF LOVE, ADVENTURE AND MYSTERY

by
HENRY C.
ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS.

Granville Boyd, owner and navigator of the yacht Rigel, anchored in the harbor at Hamilton, Bermuda, is about to start on a semi-scientific expedition around the world. He is accompanied by his sister, Carillon, and a party of scientists. Carillon meets Bengal Dodd, who has brought his yacht Gunga to Bermuda on her maiden cruise, and she asks Dodd to tag along with the Rigel. Obtaining Boyd's consent Dodd asks Jim Howland and his daughter, Gertrude, to accompany them. As they are about to leave, a widow at one of the Hamilton hotels loses her jewels and Carillon is suspected of the theft. Bengal Dodd is a former District Attorney of New York and he decides to do everything in his power to help Carillon clear herself of the suspicion. He suspects Mrs. Ransome's maid, Irma, who formerly worked for Carillon. While Boyd and Dodd are in Hamilton working on a clue, Mrs. Ransome, accompanied by Irma, comes aboard the Rigel and assures Carillon that she is certain of her innocence and tells her she is free to leave on the Rigel whenever she pleases. The two boats start off, agreeing to meet at Port au Prince.

On the seventh day out Bengal sights the Rigel drifting north and on boarding her finds she has been abandoned. Following a clue found on the chart he takes the Rigel and accompanying Gertrude makes for Verde Cay, an uninhabited island. Howland agrees to navigate Gunga to Ragged Island and wait there for the Rigel.

Bengal is sure Boyd and his guests have been the victims of pirates. Bengal goes ashore at Verde Cay after instructing Gertrude to take the Rigel to Ragged Island and bring back help. He encounters one of Carillon's captors and her former maid, Irma.

INSTALLMENT XXI. A DREADFUL EXPEDIENT.

WALKING in a sneering but false security, Tony beckoned Bengal with the muzzle of his rifle to move on. Bengal dared not turn his face toward the fellow he purposed instantly to slay, for fear the intention shine from his eyes to warn him. Tony had kept his strategic distance, about five yards, and Bengal was bareheaded. But Irma, standing within a step or two, still carried the marlin-spike by its lanyard. She had slipped it over her wrist, as a sailor does to guard against the unpardonable and heavily punished sin of dropping a spike from aloft. Men have been knocked down and booted to death for that offense.

This simple detail of Irma having carelessly slipped her hand through the bight seriously interfered with Bengal's desperate plan. If she had continued to dangle the heavy 12-inch spike from her fingers, a leap and a quick grab could furnish Bengal with a formidable lethal weapon, one admirably adapted for a bone crushing blow with the butt end, a fearful stab, or perhaps, better yet, to throw. But the loop through the hole at its thick end was of new marlin, too tough to snap, especially when attached to a yielding body, too snug to tug loose. Every mortal fraction of a second was priceless, as although Tony might be unaware that while the safety lock of the rifle was thrown to "safe," yet unless he got badly rattled it would take but a second or two for him to discover his error and to correct it. Even should he fail to do so and fire in time, still he was himself a powerful man, and in the struggle that must ensue for Bengal's overcoming him barehanded, there was Irma herself armed with the spike.

But there was no help for it. Bengal perceived in that brief instant between Tony's signal to march on and his turning to obey the menacing wave of the rifle barrel that it must be now or never. At any moment some other member of the gang might come in sight and join them. He would have to take his chance with Irma. Then, with muscles taut and brain aflame, an old ruse occurred to him. One of those time tested tricks of the cornered victim that for all its broadcast advertising in literature and drama still serves with success and will continue so to do until the end of time, like threadbare April Fool jokes. Bengal now put this in operation.

Turning heavily in obedience to Tony's gesture, he checked himself halfway and stared fixedly at the north, to which Tony's back was turned. Bengal did not overplay the gesture by any audible expression. His eyes merely widened as if caught by some distant object to inspire hope, a breathless eagerness.

Irma fell into the snare. She turned to follow Bengal's gaze. But Tony's set hawklike visage did not budge from the axis at which 'twas set. His thin lips writhed back in a snarl. The rifle stock was jerked to his shoulder. Something in the quick contraction of his face told Bengal that he would pull the trigger. The primitive instinct of the brute had caught and interpreted the blaze of destructive ferocity projected against him. He meant to run no further risk with so desperate a captive. And at the same instant Bengal sprang.

Just as he had known, the rifle failed to detonate. Tony, swift of comprehension in a crisis, as the complete criminal must be, knew instantly that was wrong, and the thumb of his right hand gripping the small of the stock jammed upward to correct the error. But the lock was stiff, and before he could throw it across, Bengal was upon him.

It was then that Tony committed his next tactical error. He slipped the rifle from his shoulder to thrust his assailant with the muzzle, as if it had been furnished with a bayonet. Even without this, Tony had proved a crippling jab. But Bengal had foreseen the tentative, and parried with one side-sweeping arm. The next instant his fist crashed into the contorted face, but glancingly, as Tony jerked his head aside. Bengal's other hand flew up to the man's throat. Tony loosed his grip on the rifle, but Bengal had seized the barrel with his other hand. He realized the danger from Irma, with or without the rifle, and that his one hope was instantly to finish the affair. The best chance for doing this seemed to be to club the heavy arm and to smash the barrel of it down onto the head of the man he now had by the throat.

But they were too closely locked. Tony may have felt his danger, for his free arms locked round Bengal's waist, even while Bengal shoved back Tony's head to make space for a blow. Anticipating this, Tony took a desperate chance, relying on support from Irma. He hooked one leg, then the other round Bengal's and caught them in a scissors hold. The footing was not of the best and Bengal, feeling his balance gone, plunged forward and downward, with Tony underneath. Such a contact on naked rock would seem enough at first to stun the under man, but Tony managed to wriggle about as he fell, the shock bearing on one shoulder.

Even in the violence of the mortal struggle Bengal had not overlooked the peril of Irma. Still gripping Tony's throat in one fist and the rifle in the other, he shot back a glance over his shoulder, barely in time to dodge the blow she struck at him with the marlin-spike. Had it been dealt with the butt end the fight must have been over, Bengal the loser. But Irma had not waited to slip off the loop from her wrist, so that she struck with the tapering end. It missed Bengal's head, landing on his shoulder, numbing but not paralyzing it. Before she could recover from striking, Bengal's right hand loosed its hold on the rifle and flashed up to close on Irma's wrist, the one encircled by the marlin loop. A quick and powerful tug pulled Irma down over his shoulder.

So here now, like the infant Hercules gripping the two serpents sent by Juno to destroy him, Bengal had one venomous reptile in the grip of his left hand with the female of the species in his right

A quick and powerful tug pulled Irma down over his shoulder.

Tony was for the moment powerless, but he had loosed his arms from round Bengal's waist and was now striving to break the strange hold on his throat, which, being a powerful fellow, he might have accomplished. Bengal felt his thumb and fingers slipping on the greasy skin.

He employed then a dreadful expedient. Bengal's right hand closed like a vice over Irma's, still clasping the marlin-spike, the sharp polished point of which was directed to the region under which pulsed Tony's heart. Then, dragging Irma down irresistibly as he threw his weight on the blunted butt, Bengal bore down slowly, heavily and inexorably. The black heart did not pulse very long.

Rising to his feet, still clutching Irma by the wrist, Bengal stooped, picked up the rifle, then glared with bloodshot eyes at the bivouac below and a little to the left, about a furlong away. There was no sign of life about it. Irma had not screamed, lashing about like a trapped leopardess, clawing and buffeting at Bengal's head and face.

"Go on back the way we came," Bengal growled. "I never thought I'd bring myself to kill a woman, but maybe I was wrong." He loosed his hold of her, stepped back and threw the safety lock to ready. "That was the little thing that did for him. He didn't understand this gun. Here, give me that spike. Butt first."

Irma slipped the loop and handed it to him in silence. Despite the congestion of his brain Bengal was struck by something in the expression of her face. There was a curious glow to it, a total absence of the horror to be expected, and her light eyes were lambent as they rested for a moment on those of Bengal, then passed to a scrutiny of the body sprawled grotesquely on the naked rock that it was staining horribly. Bengal followed her gaze.

"That carrion will never boast in some thieves' kennel of having brutalized a helpless girl."

Irma shrugged. "She has suffered no great harm. Only a few scratches."

"Get along with you . . . walk ahead." It would not do to stand there in plain sight of the camp. Irma shrugged again and walked down the slope. Bengal stooped, seized one of the limbs of his late antagonist and followed. Reaching a steep descent into the bush he tumbled his late captive into it, as a hunter might dispose of worthless game that might prove accretory if found by a keeper. (Continued tomorrow.)

Take a tablespoonful each of butter and flour with a level teaspoonful of curry powder, and cook together to a paste; add this to the tomato, stirring as it thickens. Add pepper, salt and a little sugar and it is ready to serve. Serve the tomatoes on a mound of boiled rice and pour the sauce over all.

ARM IN ARM WITH MR. BUCHANAN LINCOLN PASSED THROUGH THE LONG TUNNEL, ERECTED FOR HIS PROTECTION, ENTERED THE CAPITOL, AND PASSED INTO THE SENATE CHAMBER FILLED TO OVERFLOWING WITH SENATORS, MEMBERS OF THE DIPLOMATIC CORPS AND VARIOUS VAST CROWDS SURROUNDING THE CAPITOL, WAITING FOR APPEARANCE OF THE PRESIDENT-ELECT.

THE PRESIDENTIAL PARTY, HEADED BY THE JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT, IN CAP AND DOWN, MOVED TO THE EAST FRONT OF THE CAPITOL WHERE A PLATFORM HAD BEEN ERECTED. AS SOON AS THE LARGE COMPANY WAS SEATED, LINCOLN LOOKED ABOUT FOR A SPOT WHERE HE MIGHT PLACE HIS HIGH SEAT. STEPHEN A. DOUGLASS, SEATED JUST BEHIND HIM, STEPPED FORWARD QUICKLY AND TOOK IT. "I CAN BE PRESIDENT, I CAN AT LEAST HOLD HIS SEAT," HE WHISPERED TO A FRIEND.

LINCOLN READ HIS INAUGURAL BY A VOICE SO CLEAR THAT IT COULD BE HEARD TO THE OUTSKIRTS OF THE VAST CROWD. AT ITS END HE TURNED PARTLY TO HIS LEFT, FACING THE JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT. "I AM NOW READY TO TAKE THE OATH PRESCRIBED BY THE CONSTITUTION," HE SAID. THE OATH WAS THEN ADMINISTERED BY CHIEF JUSTICE TANEY. LINCOLN KISSED THE BIBLE.

THERE WAS ONE STARTLING INCIDENT IN THE CEREMONIES. LINCOLN WAS WELL ON WITH THE READING OF HIS SPEECH WHEN THERE WAS A CRASH IN FRONT OF HIM. THERE WAS A MOMENT OF AGITATION, THEN IT WAS DISCOVERED THE LIMB OF A TREE WHERE AN ONLOOKER HAD BEEN PERCHED HAD BROKEN AND FALLEN UNDER HIS WEIGHT.

SACCO - VANZETTI
JURORS DECLARE TRIAL WAS FAIR

Canvass of 10 of 11 Surviving Members Gives Consensus That Judge Thayer Was Impartial.

TWO WOULD FAVOR LIFE IMPRISONMENT

Others Content to Leave Case in Hands of Governor—Proposal for Inquiry Board Criticised.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
BOSTON, Mass., April 19. —

After a lapse of almost seven years since the jury in the Sacco-Vanzetti case returned its verdict in the court-house at Dedham on July 14, 1921, a correspondent of the Boston Herald asked the judge put two pertinent questions to the eleven surviving members of that jury who found the two defendants guilty and sentenced them to death.

The questions were:

In your opinion, did Sacco and Vanzetti receive a fair and impartial trial?

In your opinion, should Gov. Fuller appoint the proposed commission to review the case?

Nine of the jurors were interested in the first question. One sent his answer by wire from New London, Conn. The eleventh could not be found at his last address in Dedham, Mass. The other, Walter H. Ripley of Quincy who was foreman, died in 1923.

Six jury members were emphatic in their assertions that the two men had been given a fair and impartial trial. Five recalled, in proof of their statements, part of Judge Webster Thayer's charge to the jury, in which he said: "In the administration of our law, there should be no distinction between parties of different color. You are not to allow the fact that the defendants are Italians to influence or prejudice you in the least degree. They are entitled to the same rights and considerations as though their ancestors came over in the Mayflower."

Another juror who since the trial has become a member of the Massachusetts bar declared that he had the utmost faith in Governor Sullivan, and that it was his duty to exercise executive clemency in the interests of justice he was well able to do so without the help of any commission.

Two jurors admitted a repugnance to capital punishment. Of these two one would not amplify his statement. The other was inclined to leave it to the Governor to decide that justice is done. He said that he would be satisfied if there were a rigorous life imprisonment.

All Praise Trial Judge.

Of all the jurors who made statements as to not one expressed any doubt as to the justness of the trial and verdict. Each in turn spoke highly of Judge Trayer and his able foreman, Rippey. Each avowed that the fact that the two defendants were alleged Reds did not in any way enter into their deliberations or stand to becloud the issues before them.

Most of them expressed surprise that the case had taken on an international aspect, stating it as their belief that the case was closed with the denial of the motion for a new trial.

The only living juror not heard from is J. Frank McNamara of West Stoughton, who winters in Florida.

John F. Dever of Brookline, assistant to the superintendent at Fish-ea's Department Store and who since serving on the jury has become a practicing attorney, declared that both the convicted men had received full justice at the hands of the court and jury.

He said:

"I had never heard of the two defendants before I entered the court room. Together with the other 11 members of the jury I considered all the evidence presented and with them reached the unanimous verdict. If the evidence had not been what it was we would not have found the men guilty.

"What has happened since the trial is not a matter for the jury, but for the courts of Massachusetts, and they will see that justice is done. I am the utmost confidence in the governor and feel that he will be able to handle the situation without the help of any commission."

Wallace Hersey of South Weymouth, a middle-aged real estate broker, declared that he has been
